

Carmel Pine Cone embarks on its 75th year

By RAY MUNGO

WHEN THE Carmel Pine Cone "burst upon the scene" Feb. 3, 1915, the village of Carmel-by-the-Sea was a tiny enclave of artists, writers, playwrights, actors, and bohemians determined to create a kind of intellectual oasis on the sparsely populated central coast. Ocean Avenue was unpaved, there was not yet a fire department in town, and the village was an unincorporated gathering of free-thinkers who had come to build their homes.

Village postmaster William L. Overstreet founded and edited the Pine Cone with absolute conviction that the town would grow. "The foundation for the establishment of this weekly publication is a profound confidence in the future — and that not distant — prosperity of our beloved Carmel-by-the-Sea," he wrote.

"Those who are interested in Carmel are not devoting their lives to the mere making of money," he added. "They do not buy property to speculate. They come to make permanent homes."

However true it may have been, anyone who did buy property in 1915 would find it greatly more valuable today, of course. One could get "a nice little house" for $475, and $500 fetched "a little house with nice gardens and trees," while rents started at $7.50 and went all the way up to $15 a month. Most people, however, did not buy houses so much as raw land on which to construct their own.

As for "the mere making of money," well, it's amusing to wonder how Overstreet and his cronies would react to today's environment in which the very name "Carmel" is exploited in every imaginable T-shirt and souvenir emporium.

By 1915, the Forest Theatre was already well established and the Carmel library boasted 2,843 volumes, proof that the village had given priority to the arts. Every issue of the Pine Cone featured original poetry and local theatrical productions often commanded the lead story on page one. Overstreet generously estimated the population at 600, "swelling" to 1,200 in the summer, although the more accurate figure was probably around 450 and the official census at the time of incorporation (October 1916), was 540.

The Pine Cone from the first issue forward was to be the town's most enthusiastic promoter. "(This) weekly newspaper promotes the interests of the town in which it is published to such an extent that it becomes impossible to place an estimate upon its worth," Overstreet wrote. "It stands opposed to the town knocker, the town fanatic and the town drones. It stands for action as against dry rot."

It also took a brave stand against the proposed division of California into two states. Some believed "the people of the southern part of the state are not true Californians," but the Pine Cone stood fast for state unity. The one thing everybody agreed on was that Carmel was the best place California had to offer. Reporter Argyll Campbell wrote:

"As California is the garden of America, so is Carmel its Eden. Here, the pines and hills and waters meet, and the north and south join hands...Here is the verdure of the North without its storms, and the warmth of the South without its aridity."

Reaction to the birth of the paper came from all over. Publisher Overstreet "has decided to become the goat, rock of refuge, doormat, father-confessor and booster of that picturesque community," according to the Hollister Free Lance. The daily San Francisco Chronicle found the paper "small but breezy." The Monterey American (the Herald was not yet in existence), said the Pine Cone was "not much as to size, but if it will continue to have the same high-grade contributions which it had in its first issue, the literary quality...should be considerably above that of the average country weekly, and in keeping with the ideals of Carmel."

Those ideals extended to world issues, and the Pine Cone editorialized on national and global concerns as well as local ones. President Woodrow Wilson had a "policy to keep us out of the (first world) war at all hazards," and the paper was convinced that this war would not only end all wars, but also put an end to racial hatred. Carmel ladies staged a benefit performance of Immortal Fame, A Carmel Comedy for the Belgian relief effort after Germany invaded Belgium.

Aside from the weekly exhortation, "Pave Ocean Avenue," however, the big issue in 1915 was the effort to establish a fire department to protect the homes and property of the new settlers. Within a year, and partly through the efforts of the newspaper, the first fire-fighting engines were in place.

The Hotel Carmel was the first overnight hostelry in town, having been built around the turn of the century at Ocean and San Carlos. (The building was destroyed by fire in 1931.) Also on the scene were the Pine Inn, which advertised in the Pine Cone from the first issue on, "When writing to your friends, suggest Pine Inn as a desirable stopping place," and La Playa Hotel, which published a weekly guest list in the paper. Ben's Grocery, an early advertiser, sold butter at 30 cents a pound, eggs at 30 cents a dozen, coffee at 25 cents a pound.

The first photograph in the Pine Cone came out in the special edition of May 12, 1915. It depicted a stretch of unspoiled Carmel beach. "Pine Needles" was an original feature, reporting news of local residents' comings and goings. By mid-year the paper had adopted its motto, "If you read it in the Pine Cone, you may safely repeat it."

By winter of 1915, with warm-weather tourists gone for the season, Overstreet's promotional tone had grown a bit desperate. "Do Something! Get Busy!" he commanded. "Tell the world about Carmel! If we sit back and wait for people and business to come, it never will come. If you want your cottage rented, your store busy, your hotel full, publicity is the thing to do it."

He needn't have worried. February of 1916 saw the paper observe its first anniversary claiming 500 readers (probably more than the population of the village), and dedicated to these four principles:

- 1) Never publish anything of malicious nature;
- 2) Publish only "clean" writing, above moral reproach;
- 3) Never use the paper as the editor's "personal organ" (one could dispute Overstreet's adherence to this idea — he even published a page one account of his daughter's Valentine party);
- 4) "Promote Carmel to the world."

NINETEEN SIXTEEN seems to have been a pivotal year for the village and the newspaper. In only its second volume, the Pine Cone had established its importance so thoroughly that voter registration was conducted in the weekly's office. One raging controversy was coroner J.A. Pell's advocacy of merging Carmel with the towns of Monterey and Seaside. "The people of Carmel desire no such an unholy alliance," the Pine Cone trumpeted.

Another local politician wanted to change the name of Pacific Grove to Asilomar Junction, but it never came to pass. The most important question, of course, was whether or not Carmel would be incorporated. Overstreet led the coalition which petitioned the Monterey County Board of Supervisors on Sept. 5 to allow the village to be incorporated. Those opposed worried that incorporation would result in higher taxes but the Pine Cone editorialized feverishly for six weeks until the Oct. 26 election produced results of 113 in favor, 86 opposed.

In its own way, the Pine Cone helped create the legal entity recognized as Carmel-by-the-Sea, independent of its neighbors. The paper pointed out that the high proportion of artists in Carmel would diminish as more people came in, adding that it would be wise to give these artists a chance to plan the future of the village with their eyes for aesthetic beauty. Already, trees were sacred and any change in the natural environment discouraged.

House prices went up. A house and barn on a 100-by-100 foot lot was advertised for $1,000 and a really swell place with six rooms, "Four blocks from Pine Inn, three blocks from the beach, facing the bay," was a whopping $2,500.

Robinson Jeffers had arrived in 1914. Jack London and Sinclair Lewis were in town, and the poet George Sterling, and novelist Mary Austin, and many others. The first Red Cross chapter was formed. J.F. Devendorf was instrumental in many early decisions, and donated the land that is now Devendorf Park in the center of town. The basic rate for household water was 90 cents a month. The Carmel schoolmaster ordered Alec Panoche, an Indian child, to take a bath or stop coming to school. The lad bathed — in the Carmel River. "It does beat all how the white race will persist in persecuting and pestering the noble Red Man," Overstreet opined in his sole commentary on the Indians. For the most part the early Carmelians, and the Pine Cone, espoused a reverence for Junipero Serra.

The annual income of the average Carmel resident in 1916 was up to $714. Relatively huge amounts of money were allocated by Monterey County to build the Coast Highway — with Carmel-by-the-Sea as "the terminus of the road of ten thousand wonders."

(To be continued: Chapter Two, 1917-20. America enters the great war; Theodore Criley moves his family to the Carmel Highlands; "The Pageant of the Padres" by Perry Newberry is Carmel's most spectacular extravaganza; the Pine Cone achieves "world renown"....)

Several special features planned for our 75th year

WITH THIS issue, the Carmel Pine Cone begins its 75th year of publication, adding to its history as the oldest continually published newspaper on the Monterey Peninsula. The paper predates the incorporation of the village of Carmel-by-the-Sea by about 20 months.

Throughout this Diamond Jubilee Year, the Pine Cone will publish a series of articles, photographs and old advertisements depicting the history of Carmel over 75 years, as it was seen through the pages of the weekly. These historical memories will be gathered together in a special souvenir commemorative edition of the Pine Cone to be published in November.

Readers are encouraged to share with us their memories, old documents and letters, real estate transactions and photos of Carmel as it used to be. The Pine Cone will try to include as many as possible of these personal histories in its coverage of the past 75 years in the village.

The first issue of the paper, dated Feb. 3, 1915, served notice on the world that the unincorporated village had found its voice: "Permit Us," publisher William L. Overstreet wrote, "We have come to stay." Noted local poet Herbert Heron put it this way:

*The Carmel Pine Cone bursts upon the scene,
 With youth and sap, with color, fruit and all;*

*Our local press, our weekly magazine...
 And every little while the Pine Cones Fall.*

Over the years the Pine Cone has reached into the most farflung corners of the world. It has published news and works of some of the most famous authors and artists who settled in the village, described as "the most lovable spot in this fair land."

In 1942, the paper absorbed its only competitor, the Cymbal, and called itself the Pine Cone-Cymbal through the 1960s. It also introduced several new journals. Its Carmel Valley Outlook was published separately from 1959 to 1981, when it merged with the Pine Cone. It launched the weekly entertainment and dining guide, the Monterey Peninsula Review, in 1973 and the weekly Pacific Grove Monarch in 1986.

Current publisher Bill Brown of Brown and Wilson, Inc., acquired the Pine Cone in 1982.

Today's paper includes the first chapter in our Diamond Jubilee Year coverage. Author and occasional Pine Cone columnist Ray Mungo, who wrote the history of the paper for the Windsor Publications book The Monterey Peninsula: An Enchanted Land, is writing the historical pieces. Managing Editor Mac McDonald will edit the special commemorative edition. Today's paper also features a wraparound reprint of the first Pine Cone, dated Feb. 3, 1915.

Where is city going?

Dear Editor:

After living a mile and a half from the center of Carmel for 42 years, I am still puzzled as to exactly what Carmel-by-the-Sea thinks it is and what its hopes are for the future.

All this time there has been talk about parking, but no sensible steps have been taken to help the situation. The time limits for parking in the center of town have changed from no limits at all to one hour or 20 minutes. This indicates to me that the city does not want people to stay in town long enough to spend any money. Is there more money to be made for overtime parking than through the sales tax on motels, businesses, etc.? A strange philosophy indeed!

The latest ideas to lease out the north parking lot at Sunset and charge $1.50 an hour there and only to let residents of Carmel proper park in or near the business area take no account at all of people who live on the outskirts and like to go into Carmel.

I have been getting my mail in Carmel-by-the-Sea all the time I have lived here and do not want to have it delivered or get it at the post office at the mouth of the valley. I know I could park for 10 minutes at the post office and leave, but I prefer to park where I can stay indefinitely. I like to walk, I meet people I know (though there are fewer of them all the time), and I frequently have lunch downtown, sometimes buy things, though shops catering to people like me are few and far between. Does the city council want to chase us out altogether?

If the above plans are carried out I foresee a lot of empty parking spaces in the areas allowed to residents only and people like me having to park even farther away. I certainly am not interested in paying $1.50 an hour for what I do in town! Nor can I afford it.

Where are tourists supposed to park? I can't imagine they will be very happy if they can't park in the center of town to shop and eat.

It really seems as if the city is trying to keep people from coming here and spending money, and at the same time is antagonizing many people who live nearby. Is this the real purpose of the present proposals?

Need for paramedics

Dear Editor:

How many residents are aware that the Red Cross ambulances that serve Carmel, Carmel Valley, the adjacent County area and a part of Pebble Beach DO NOT have paramedics in them?

This lack of paramedics was brought to our attention Saturday morning, Jan. 14. Our very close friends were visiting us for a few days. About 1:30 a.m. our friend woke his wife saying he thought he was having a heart attack. It took all of us a few minutes to get our wits together and then call 911 at 1:41 a.m.

Shortly thereafter two police officers arrived. They verified our call and reported in.

We were told that 911 received our call at 1:41 a.m. but that they have only one man on duty and he has to phone the other volunteers. They have to be called wherever they are and most likely were asleep. We kept asking the officers what was keeping the ambulance. Finally, one of them said it would be here shortly.

It was over 20 minutes before the ambulance arrived. It took 20-plus minutes to go five blocks from Sixth and Mission to Eighth and Junipero. The men on the ambulance wasted a lot of time and only one person seemed to know what he was doing but he was so busy doing paper work he didn't do much directing.

Finally, at 2:14 they arrived at Community Hospital, three and one half miles from our home. Thirty-three minutes after our call. We're not saying the lack of a paramedic caused our friend's death, but had there been paramedics administering their capabilities all this time, possibly his chances of surviving would have been better.

Our residents do not know that our ambulances do not carry paramedics. We have called many residents of all areas and most of them did not know that volunteers with limited medical training man our Red Cross ambulances. These ambulances may be free but don't you think we deserve the best even if it costs us all some money?

Why do we have to wait on Salinas and/or Seaside to decide what they want to do? We don't need them to make sure we give all our residents, senior citizens, people with health problems and our visitors every opportunity to stay alive? Establish our full time paramedic service now.

So long, Ronnie

Dear Editor:

The word "liberal" has been misused a lot lately and many people have been confused as to its meaning. I've read that the liberal is for change and progress while the conservative is opposed to change and is satisfied with the status quo.

F.D.R. defined it thusly during the campaign for his first term: "Say that civilization is a tree, which, as it grows, continually produces rot and dead wood. The radical says 'Cut it down.' The conservative says 'Don't touch it.' The liberal compromises: 'Let's prune, so that we lose neither the old trunk nor the new branches.'"

Well, the Gipper has finally marched off into the sunset. I think we will have a more moderate, kinder and more intelligent president taking over. I like the things he says and the ideas he sponsors.

There are so many problems to be solved. The neglected environment, pollution of the air and the water and the deadly drug problem are all getting worse. Corruption in religion, Wall Street and in our federal government all seem to be out of hand.

The rich upper class in America lost a faithful friend when Reagan went home and the poor and underprivileged got rid of an ardent non-friend.

I'm sure that George Bush will do better and I wish Ronnie and Nancy good health.

Travesty of law

Dear Editor:

This week I observed in a Monterey court what could only be described as a travesty of the law.

An adult was accused of an unlawful act by three teenagers. Considering the adult admitted the wrongdoing, plus more, at the scene of the crime to a police officer, it should have been a clear-cut case, especially after the police report was inappropriately discredited. There were clear implications of prejudice against the teenagers by not only the defense as expected, but also by the judge.

The judge, before announcing the verdict, made an inappropriate "assumed" statement that the teenagers must have been in the wrong. The adult who was portrayed as an upstanding citizen, committed perjury. The teenagers were never referred to as "citizens." They were always referred to as the "children."

The teenagers and those present learned several lessons: 1. There is prejudice against teenagers, even in our courts. 2. Adults do lie under oath. 3. Justice does not always prevail.

Golf course watering

Dear Editor:

Golf courses in our area do consume considerable water to keep their turf green and bring in the tourists. But there is a big variability in the price these golf courses pay for their water. At least five major water recycling projects over the past 12 years have failed to materialize to allow the courses and greenbelts to switch to non-potable water sources.

The four Carmel Valley golf courses use mostly potentially potable water from the C.R. aquifers, whereas the Pebble Beach, Del Monte and Pacific Grove courses are 100 percent dependent upon drinking water from the same Carmel Valley aquifers or the Cal-Am system. Fort Ord's two golf courses and the Navy's course are dependent upon well water, which also consumes otherwise drinking water.

The disparity of cost to the user is a major obstacle to water supporting projects which will use recycled water rather than short supply drinking waters. For instance, with some 13 years of good records at the two Pebble Beach MPCC courses, the latest year's cost of irrigation water was $735 per acre foot used. In 1976 the acre foot cost was $108 per acre foot— a huge 700 percent plus increase in costs.

On the other hand, the courses using well water, particularly the four Carmel Valley courses, pay basically zero for their water. Crediting them with pumping costs those courses probably have a total of $25 per acre foot against the $730 or $800/acre foot cost of the irrigation water. That is a difference of over $700 of operating cost per acre foot or 2,800 percent.

Recognition of the price of this irrigated water for golf courses is a key to any success for converting all these golf courses to recycled water. Let's get the issue of water cost, and any "conflict of interest" of those golf courses, out in the open. We must get all these golf courses in this area off drinking water and soon.

court lawsuit with the Monterey County Superior Court against the city of Carmel for its recent approval of a transient rental ordinance.

The ordinance, approved in December and effective Jan. 5, prohibits the rental of residences in the R-1 district for less than 30 days. It states that such short-term rentals are commercial enterprises, which is illegal in the residential district.

The city sent registered letters in December to every Carmel homeowner stating that the city approved an ordinance prohibiting commercial uses in the R-1 district.

After the letter, Lombardo said he received many telephone calls from property owners.

"People started calling and asking me what they can and can't do. I couldn't answer them because the ordinance is so vague. Many of them felt they had no recourse but to try to address the matter in court," Lombardo said.

Approval of the ordinance in December generated statewide press coverage and garnered city hall more letters, both for and

The court date is set for Friday, Feb. 10 at Monterey County Superior Court. Judge John M. Phillips will be presiding.

The 1982 date cited in the lawsuit refers to a permanent injunction by Superior Court Judge Ralph M. Drummond which enjoined the city of Carmel from enforcing a 1981 ordinance that also prohibited rentals of less than 30 days.

The injunction was the last in a series of lawsuits over other transient rental ordinances the city had approved.

The city had appealed an earlier court decision against the 1981 ordinance, but the court decision stated that while the intent was valid, the ordinance was written so it was too broad and subject to misinterpretation.

The ordinance was amended. However, Drummond still decided that it was not sufficiently changed and issued an injunction against the city. Carmel did not appeal Drummond's decision.

If found in contempt of the injunction this time around, the fine is $1,000 plus attorney fees out to "dinner." The ordinance prohibits renting "residential structures" for "remuneration."

The definition of remuneration is ambiguous, Lombardo said.

"If you loan your home to someone and they take you out to dinner, are you violating the law? It is like the old loitering law. If they don't like the look of you, then you are loitering," he said.

He added that if the city had agreed to write an ordinance restricting the violation to a seven-days-or-less stay, his clients would not have filed a lawsuit. However, he admitted that he believed even an ordinance prohibiting rentals for a week or less would have still been unconstitutional, his clients just would not have challenged it.

City officials will not discuss the lawsuit as yet because it is pending legislation, but city attorney Don Freeman has contended that the 1988 ordinance is significantly different.

Freeman stated during the council meeting that the ordinance in no way prohibits people

San Carlos Agency co-owner Bruce Britton, who protested the ordinance at the city council meetings, is also listed as one of the "et als." The real estate agency is one of many in Carmel that handles monthly rentals for vacationers.

Britton said that he and the other plaintiffs decided not to wait until the city enforced the ordinance to file the lawsuit because in order to force the city's hand, he would have had to break the law.

"We don't want to violate the law. Especially as real estate people, we feel obligated to uphold it," Britton said.

Britton added that very few of his clients had decided to rent their second homes on a long-term basis, opting instead to let the houses stand empty until the owners wish to use them.

Britton said he would have agreed to an ordinance that restricts short-term rentals for seven days or less, though he also believes that violates constitutional rights of freedom of association.

Disney Pictures files for permit to film in Carmel

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL City Council will write the "script" on an upcoming film for Walt Disney Pictures.

The company has applied for a permit to film five days in April in the commercial district, mainly around the Cypress Inn on Lincoln Street and Seventh Avenue.

The council will consider the permit at its next meeting, 4 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 7 in Carpenter Hall at Sunset Center.

Location manager Eric Johnson said that the filming will require the closing off of some streets to automobile traffic, once for three days in a row, and use of some large equipment trucks.

"I expect some people will have some concerns which we hope to answer," Johnson said, adding that they were a "lovely, non-polluting industry."

Carmel Mayor Jean Grace stated she hoped that the council will hear from the community on the issue.

Though she had not yet seen the permit, so could not comment on what they were specifically asking for, Grace said "I believe we have not heard from a majority of Carmel residents on this issue."

The film, Turner and Hooch will be directed by Henry Winkler, known as "The Fonz" from the television series Happy Days and will star Tom Hanks. In the film, Hanks depicts a small town policeman with a very ugly dog called Hooch.

In December, Winkler and members of the company addressed the Carmel Business Association, the Carmel Residents Association and Carmel High School about the upcoming shoot.

Winkler received a variety of responses, varying from wild enthusiasm from the high school students, a more dignified but still eager group at the CBA, to a group of skeptical and concerned CRA members.

The approximately nine attendees at the CRA meeting told Winkler that his reputation from Hollywood was excellent but they were worried that the movie would bring more people into town.

According to Carmel Police Chief Jack McGilvray and Johnson, the permit requests shooting on April 6, 8, 13, 14, 15.

The last three days will include work done exclusively around the Cypress Inn, which will play the role of the movie's city hall in a fictional beach town called Cypress Beach.

The movie company will want to close off Lincoln Street between Eighth and Ocean avenues and Seventh Avenue between Dolores and Monte Verde streets.

Intermittent traffic control is requested on Monte Verde and Dolores streets between Ocean and Seventh avenues and San Carlos Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues.

The company plans to do some shooting on those streets, but only for one day on each street.

McGilvray said that the city would use police officers on overtime for traffic and crowd control and that production company will pay for that overtime.

Johnson spent two days gathering about 100 signatures in the affected business area from business people on a petition in support of the filming. Only one business refused to sign, he said.

"It was very instructive, walking around," Johnson said.

He said that usually when a street is closed off to vehicular traffic, the businesses do better because the crew buys things to take home. He also stated the streets would be open to pedestrian traffic for the most part.

The business community had rebelled against movie production in the commercial district after the filming of a Chevy Chase movie several years ago that disrupted traffic and business on Ocean Avenue.

Johnson said that the production company would be shooting on the peninsula for a total of two weeks and hopes to use such locations as Carmel River Beach. The company has applied to Monterey County for permit there.

Policy, preservation issues crowd agenda for Carmel City Council

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL City Council has policies aplenty on its upcoming agenda.

The council is being asked to give some policy guidance on development of historical preservation ordinances, food service on Ocean Avenue, new hotels and motels in town and exterior lighting in the residential district.

The council will meet at 4 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 7 in Carpenter Hall in Sunset Center.

The council will hear a report from the Architectural/Cultural/Historical Committee on its progress on a historical preservation ordinance for Carmel.

The committee compiled an ordinance, but found that portions of it conflicts with the city's general plan.

"We have to ask the council what direction they wish us to go in," committee chairman Roger Larson said.

Historical preservation is a growing issue in Carmel as the planning commission receives more and more demolition requests — five were granted applications at its last meeting.

At least one business, the Cypress Inn, has submitted a historical preservation ordinance of its own as a means to restore a restaurant and bar to the hotel. The inn once was a full-service establishment and owners would like to return it to that status.

The commission referred the ordinance to a study group and the ACH Committee.

The general plan calls for a voluntary program, but preservation advocates believe that some mandatory provisions need to be included in any preservation law.

The city, however, may not be ready to compile a full-scale historical preservation ordinance, according to planning director Diane White.

"It's not that I am for or against the issue, it's just that the planning commission and the city council didn't identify this as a work program for implementing the general plan until 1990. We don't have the staff resource at this time to properly provide for what this effort deserves," White said. "We haven't seen any requests for the demolition of historical or cultural buildings yet."

The city is in the process of writing ordinances to bring the code into compliance with the general plan and has outlined its work program.

In other agenda items, the council will consider:

- The interpretation of the general plan on establishing new hotels and motels. A housing element policy, P3-16, states that the general plan prohibits "the conversion of all uses and structures to visitor lodgings, condominiums or stock cooperatives."

The planning staff has requested a clarification of that issue — whether or not the word "conversion" means no more new hotels or motels.

During a planning commission meeting, chairman Olof Dahlstrand had told the staff that they were misinterpreting the general plan, saying that they were telling applicants that new visitor accommodations were prohibited.

- Policies on food services along Ocean Avenue. The planning commission approved a resolution that requests the city council have the planning commission develop an ordinance to control the effects of food consumption along Ocean Avenue.

- Will consider an urgency ordinance outlining policies on exterior lighting in the residential district.

City Administrator Doug Schmitz said he had observed lighting fixtures on some homes that "are like a Wickes Furniture parking lot."

Philo property neighbors prepared to take on county

By DAVID LELAND

OPPONENTS OF a proposed day-use preserve slated for the old "Philo" property south of Carmel are gearing up for battle with the county parks department.

Known as the Canyons Neighborhood Association, and representing residents from Palo Colorado, Bixby, Garrapata and Las Piedras canyons, the group is led by Mike Caplin.

The conflict stems from the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District's purchase of the 1,157-acre parcel, located in Palo Colorado Canyon, from the Big Sur Land Trust, which bought the land in 1987.

If plans are completed for a full-time ranger station, restroom facilities, fire protection and hiking trails, opponents fear that the narrow Palo Colorado Canyon road will become overcrowded and more dangerous than it already is.

"They're calling it a preserve, but what they're planning is a park-recreation facility," said Caplin, a Palo Colorado Canyon resident, adding that there are no easements on the land to prevent development. "What preserves property is restrictions on the use of a project."

Funding for the $1.4 million acquisition is coming from Proposition 70, a bond measure passed by voters last November which targeted $25 million for the purchase of open space viewshed along the Big Sur coast and additional money for establishing open space.

Park Director Gary Tate said currently there is sufficient parking for nine cars, which will be expanded to accommodate 14 autos.

Caplin said his group fears that if a fire starts on the property, all of the surrounding residences will go up in smoke.

The park district has indicated that it will have 10,000 to 20,000 gallons of water storage on the land.

"If a fire starts on that property, it doesn't matter how much water you have stored," he said. "If you increase the number of people on the property, you increase the chances of a fire starting by accident."

Also, if the preserve is listed on maps of the peninsula, it will be bound to attract people, Caplin said.

"The best thing for the property is for it to be left exactly as it is now," he said.

The issue will be heard at a Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District Board of Directors meeting set for 8 p.m. Monday, Feb. 6, in the Seaside City Council Chambers.

Meals on Wheels needs volunteers

DRIVERS AND other volunteers are needed to deliver 200 meals daily to shut-ins and the handicapped on the peninsula for Meals on Wheels.

According to Chuck Poland, a Carmel volunteer, 200 homes are served with three meals five days a week from Carmel Valley to Marina, but 22 volunteer drivers are needed daily to deliver those meals.

"We were seven drivers short the other day," said Poland, who has been pressed in to service so often that he's driving almost daily now. "It means a lot to these people. You thank your lucky stars when you leave."

Poland said there are 22 routes, three of them in the Carmel area. One route usually takes from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. (including driving to and from the pick-up point in Pacific Grove).

Almost all of the help is from volunteers, Poland said, so often the agency ends up short-handed. If you would like to volunteer to help out, contact Meals on Wheels at 375-4454.

Meals on Wheels is a non-profit organization now in its 16th year.

the Year Award. The three comprise the CRA selection committee and received 15 nominations from 62 submissions. (Nancy Hills photo.)

CRA set to name Citizen of Year

THE CARMEL Residents Association Citizen of the Year Award party and announcement of the winner are just around the corner.

The organization is throwing a special party from 3 to 5 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 5 at the Scout House on the northeast corner of Mission Street and Eighth Avenue to announce the name of that unique individual, who will find out that day that he or she is the guest of honor.

Entrance to the celebration, which includes food and music, is $5 per person.

Tickets will be sold in front of the Village Corner Restaurant on the corner of Dolores Street and Sixth Avenue from Wednesday, Feb. 2 to Saturday, Feb. 4 and at the door of the Scout House during the party.

Jim Holliday, Peggy Purchase and Gordon Campbell, the three CRA members comprising the Citizen of the Year Committee, have determined the recipient of the award, but are keeping very mum about the honoree. It is the first time this award has been given out.

The recipient need not be a member of the CRA or be nominated by a member.

In December 1988, the committee members began sifting through the 62 submissions from Carmel citizens that pinpointed about 15 individuals or groups as worthy of recognition.

"We wanted to stimulate public awareness and leadership outside of the government,"

Holliday explained as the reason the organization decided to sponsor the award. He added that being in government did not preclude a nomination.

All three members of the committee were pleasantly surprised at the submitted nominations.

"I thought it was wonderful the way some people responded and the quality of information provided in the nomination. It is apparent the public is well aware of what is happening. Clearly, these were not just nominations by friends but carefully thought-out submissions with reasoning based on what leadership means in Carmel," Holliday said.

The committee tallied the nominations but did not base their decision on the number of nominations a single person received.

That was taken into account, Purchase said, but it also depended upon how well the committee felt the nominee matched the criteria — contributing to maintaining the residential values and quality of life in Carmel.

The nominations spanned the spectrum of activities, including cultural and social, but concentrated on the political actions, with an emphasis on the recent general plan review process.

Interestingly, Purchase said, some groups of people and organizations were also nominated.

Who they choose, though, will remain under wraps until Feb. 5.

BUSINESS BEAT

By David Leland

The prez speaks

JUST BACK from a planning retreat featuring the CBA Organizational Review Task Force and board of directors, newly installed CBA President Barbara Simmons is chock full of bright ideas for the coming year.

The task force is composed of Gary Luce (chairman), Simmons, Dee Adolf, Rhenda Miller, Dean Vittitoe and Tony Solomon. Just for the record, the gathering took place at Miller's Carmel Valley home.

Topping the group's concern is the limited amount of funding given the CBA by the city, which totalled $9,300 last year.

"When you realize that the business community supplies 70 percent of the city's budget (sales and hostelry taxes), it seems a little unfair," says Simmons, who adds that the CBA actually saves Carmel money by diverting phone calls from city hall.

"It's only fair they pay for a full-time person because it's a full-time job just to answer the phone calls and open letters," she says.

Another hot topic at the retreat centered on preserving Carmel's image as a nice, polite village.

Some merchants (a very few), says Simmons, tend to treat their clientele somewhat rudely.

"If you receive even two or three complaints it's too many because people leave Carmel with a bad taste in their mouth," explains Simmons, who is unsure how she will approach those who are less-than-courteous to visitors.

Last, but by no means, least, the CBA this year will attempt to step into the arena of local issues, and makes its voice known on issues such as parking and ordinances.

"Our problem in the past is we're business people and we were all working (when meetings were held)," she explains.

Now, Simmons says the CBA will set up a network system so someone can take time out from work to attend the meetings and speak the CBA's piece.

As an example of an issue on which the CBA should have voiced its concerns, Simmons pointed to the pay-for-parking plan at the north end of Sunset Center, where people will have to pay hourly or $30 a month.

"Employees won't be able to afford it, so they'll park in the residential district," offers Simmons, who adds it is unfair to think the employers should pay the fee for their workers.

Investment return...While state legislators wrestle with the demands of preparing the upcoming annual budget, the State Board of Equalization this month distributed to local governments their portions of the sales and use-tax revenue, a sum totalling $286,525,166.

What that means to Carmel is a return of $118,600 in sales tax dollars.

On a statewide level, the money was divided among four types of government entities in the following portions:

- Cities and redevelopment agencies received $160.4 million.
- Counties received $20.1 million.
- Transit districts received $61.2 million.
- Local transportation funds received $44.9 million.

These agencies receive from the Board of Equalization a portion of the statewide 6 percent sales and use tax — 1 percent to be used for general operations and .25 percent for transportation purposes. Also, in many counties, special districts have been created which receive an additional .50 percent sales and use tax.

Monterey County received a total of $243,000 in sales tax refunds for the fourth quarter of 1988.

A change in the wind...Regretfully, Fiori, the classy women's clothing store in the Carmel Plaza, has closed its doors.

And while Sharper Image, a chain outfit catering to the upscale yuppie trade, has posted a notice that it plans to occupy the space, that must still be cleared by the powers-that-be — the Carmel Planning Commission.

Other changes in the wind include Wishart's taking over the Carmel Bakery and the Book Room ending its final chapter.

Nary a drop to drink...Water, its progress and problems, will be the topic when the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association has its annual meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 8, in the Fiesta Room at Hacienda Carmel.

Bruce Buel, managing director of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, will be the speaker.

Buel will give a status report on the current water supply, discuss the 20-percent rationing program, and the possibility of the peninsula and the valley being to have 20-percent reductions in water use. See Salinas, page 10.

The meeting is open to the general public as well as CVPOA members.

Capital idea...Michael Levine has been named vice president of Kagan Capital Management, Inc., where he will be responsible for developing strategic marketing plans and assist in managing KCM investment portfolios.

Prior to joining KCM, Levine was vice president of Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. Earlier, he was assistant controller and portfolio manager for Flagler Federal Savings and Loan in Miami, Fla.

Carmel-based KCM manages investment portfolios consisting primarily of public and private entertainment and communications media companies. KCM is affiliated with Paul Kagan Associates, Inc., which publishes 29 monthly newsletters on media investment research.

That's right hospitable...Longtime Carmel resident Jim Callison has been picked to represent Farley Insurance Services, Northern California's leading hospitality industry specialist, on the Central Coast.

Well-known throughout the state for its expertise and professionalism, the firm has been designing risk management packages tailor-made specifically for the hospitality industry for more than 20 years.

"We have a great relationship with the companies we serve," says Callison, "because, with nearly 3,000 clients throughout the state, we really understand the special needs of the hospitality industry."

Farley Insurance Services is a member of the Monterey Peninsula Hotel and Restaurant Association, as well as the California Restaurant Association.

Hats off...Carmel's own PR firm of Gibbs & Soell Inc., received four first-place awards and three merit awards in the annual "Best of NAMA" competition, sponsored by the National Agricultural Marketing Association.

The awards represented work done by Gibbs & Soell in 1988 for Chevron Chemical Co., Valent U.S.A. and I.C.I. Americas Inc.

The company took its awards in the categories of public relations campaigns, response-generating direct mail, trade show exhibits, video productions, company publications and dealer display illustrations.

False pretenses

Q. A provision of the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act makes it illegal to use the words "Social Security," "Medicare" and related terms in a way that falsely implies government endorsement.

It also prohibits the use of any emblem or facsimile of a Social Security card, Social Security check, stationery or envelope to convey the false impression that they are approved, endorsed, or authorized by the Social Security Administration. There are fines of $5,000 to $25,000 for each violation, or a maximum of $100,000 for multiple violations.

This seems to be the most positive part of the legislation since the Medicare provisions promise help for few and intolerable discriminatory cost for many.

TR, Marina

A. THE provision of the act you mention should help prevent the scare tactics used by various organizations to solicit money. All of the services offered by these organizations are provided free by the Social Security Administration. Unfortunately our free enterprise system does not allow us to prohibit such solicitations, but only to bar those which operate under false pretenses.

Q. I'M widowed and own and live in my own home. Until recently I've managed on my Social Security and interest from savings. I had the house painted last summer and now the recent rains confirm the need for a new roof. I'm afraid that, after I pay for the roof, the interest on the remainder of my savings plus my Social Security will not be enough to live on. I was talking to one of the women at my Savings and Loan and she said I should consider a reverse mortgage. Is there such a thing and how does it work?

GS, Pasadena

A. UNLIKE regular home equity loans, which pay the total amount up front, reverse mortgages advance the loan on a monthly basis. Under existing agreements the principal, plus interest, is due either at the end of a specified term or on the sale of the house or death of the homeowner.

An article in Modern Maturity magazine states that lenders have been skittish for a couple of reasons: (1) If the homeowner is unable to repay the loan and unwilling to sell the house to do so, the lender must foreclose or lose the money. (2) If a reverse mortgage provides income until death but the homeowner lives longer than expected, principal and interest may exceed the value of the house.

The Federal Housing Administration is expected to offer 2,500 reverse mortgages this spring, and, although few in number, the FHA guidelines and statistics are expected to encourage private insurance companies to follow suit.

A wise man once said, "None of us have enough time. But all of us have all the time there is."

At American Savings, we have a way of working with you that we call "Banking the American Way."

It delivers a level of personal service that, for the most part, seems to have disappeared from the national scene.

For example, we believe that banking usually takes up more of people's time than it should. And we're determined to do something about it.

ABOUT THOSE LINES

At a lot of banks, including some American Savings branches, long teller lines form at lunchtime. Or on the day social security checks arrive. Or, of course, on paydays.

No surprise.

That's why we've come up with a common-sense staffing approach to handle busy times in our branches.

First, we bring on extra people to help during "Prime Time" hours. Plus, we've instituted a flexible schedule for our tellers, so they take their breaks when we know we're nearly always quiet. (So while lines are sometimes inevitable, at least you can be assured that when you show up on your lunch hour, the odds are, our people aren't on theirs.)

DIALING FOR DOLLARS

As much as we enjoy personally meeting our customers at our branches, we know that there are times when you'd just as soon save a visit, and handle your banking by phone.

"We're committed to offering old fashioned, 'neighborhood banking' Where customers aren't strangers."

That's why you can call the American Savings toll-free number (1-800-247-7197) during business hours to check your account balances, or to arrange to open checking or CD accounts, or even to transfer accounts from another bank or savings and loan.

By the way; you can also use the phone to save time for yourself when you do visit us. Now you can make an appointment with one of our Financial Services Representatives to review your IRA, CD, or answer questions about any of your accounts. Just call your American Savings Branch.

AN OLD IDEA THAT SEEMS BRAND NEW

Today, American Savings is $15 billion strong.

And, of course, our accounts are Federally insured for up to $100,000 by the FSLIC, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

But maximum safety is only part of the American Savings story.

We're committed to offering old fashioned, "neighborhood banking." Where customers aren't strangers. Where "Banking the American Way" means service the way it ought to be.

Visit an American Savings branch soon. Our Manager is looking forward to greeting you personally.

Who knows? Maybe you'll have time to share a cup of coffee with us.

BUY Peninsula FIRST

By Linda G. Horning

*Quality, variety
but how's the Service?*

EVERY OTHER week I write about what I consider exciting products available right here on our peninsula (I know, I'm easily amused). But it's tough to "Buy Peninsula First" if you don't get thoughtful service as well, isn't it? So this week, I'm going to share some real-life experiences I've personally encountered which resulted in my repeat business at a number of local establishments, followed by some suggestions on how YOU can actually make a difference.

• A Seaside used appliance store gave me free delivery anywhere on the peninsula, and extended the written warranty on the appliances I purchased (which are still working fine a year later).

• Having had me wait one-half hour longer than promised for my order, a Carmel engraver gave me free hardware with which to hang (no, not myself) the finished work, which otherwise would not have been included.

• To show appreciation for my repeated substantial purchases, a Pacific Grove "gently worn" clothing retailer once tossed in a complimentary beautiful beaded handbag, and another time tossed in some complimentary costume jewelry with my purchases. (If you happen to be one of her consignors and you see me walking around in your former clothes—PLEASE—don't mention it!)

• At a Pacific Grove restaurant, the wrong side dish was served. The waitress almost immediately served an additional correct side dish at no extra charge. Two for the price of one, plus goodwill!

• At a Pacific Grove deli, the takeout order was one sandwich short. The next time I went to the deli, the owner remembered and gave me my entire current order 100 percent free of charge. Hmmm, how many times do you think I could pull that off? It was legit, honest!

• A Seaside computer store published a discount coupon in the newspaper for a printer, due to expire several days before I could get to the store. I telephoned them, explaining my problem, and they offered to reserve one for me at the discount price, simply because I had called before the ad expired.

Unfortunately, I have encountered an equal, if not greater, number of experiences of sub-standard service. Yes, right here on our peninsula. Of course, one would expect it occasionally, just by applying the law of averages.

But I'd like to see each and every retailer, service business, and professional office staff on the peninsula make service their highest priority. I, for one, don't care if you are the only one offering your particular product or service, I will not patronize your establishment if I am not made to feel "the three W's"—Warm, Welcome, and Wonderful! It costs so little: a friendly welcoming smile, an effortless "thank you," an easy application of the Golden Rule: would you want to be treated the way you or your staff are treating your customers?

If any readers have encountered poor service, why don't you cut out this column and send it to the guilty business. I'm sure many businesses out there fail without ever knowing why, so you could be doing them a great favor.

By the same token, let's give a resounding cheer (and clip out and send this column) to those businesses whose staffs have gone out of their way to make their customers feel appreciated—keep up the good work and your customers will keep coming back!

To really show support, if you have encountered a sterling business on the peninsula, you may nominate it for the annual "Small Business Excellence Award" given by the Small Business Committee of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, co-sponsored by First National Bank of Monterey County. Nomination forms will be available shortly, and you may call the Chamber office for further particulars.

(This bi-weekly column is a service of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce "Buy Peninsula First" campaign, a joint project of the Economic Development Committee and the Small Business Committee. Readers are invited to submit their thoughts and suggestions in writing to "Buy Peninsula First," C/O the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 1770, Monterey CA 93940.)

Use toll-free line for park reservations

There is a toll-free telephone number for making reservations at California State Parks through the MISTIX reservation system — 1-800-444-7275.

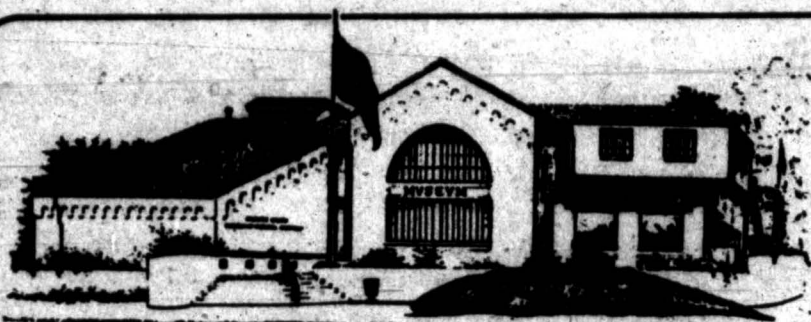

Reservations from out-of-state callers will still be made through the toll number of 1-619-452-1950.

The toll-free number is not only for state park camping reservations, but also for Hearst Castle tours.

Health, welfare services may get ax in county budget

By DAVID LELAND

HEALTH AND welfare programs could be the big financial losers in Monterey County if the 1989-90 budget forecast revealed this week proves to be true.

But despite an anticipated "expenditure/revenue" gap of as much as $4.1 million in the county general fund for the coming year, county administrators say they are not overly concerned with the total financial picture, according to a mid-year financial status report issued Tuesday.

"The noted gap is not of an unmanageable magnitude," said Ernest Morishita, county administrative officer, in his report to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors. "Our financial position going into the 1989-90 budget, while not exactly rosy, is also not gloom and doom."

This year's general fund budget totals $169.7 million, or about 90 percent of the total county budget, which was adopted at $188.3 million.

Next year's general fund budget is forecast at $176.9 million.

County officials said the $4.1 million deficit could be reduced sharply if several state and federal sources of revenue are recognized.

Currently supervisors are working with key state legislators in Sacramento in an effort to free-up some $400 million to help defray costs at the struggling county-run Natividad Medical Center.

This year the budget called for the hospital to be subsidized by the county at $3.9 million, but projections now show $8.2 million will be needed. The result: a cost overrun of $4.3 million.

Hopes for increased state funding soared earlier this year when the governor released money from the Trial Court Funding program, money which many feared would be diverted to schools in order to carry out the terms of Proposition 98.

For Monterey's coffers, that meant $1.65 million for this year and an additional $3.3 million for the coming year.

But the flip side of the Trial Court Funding pact involved state-funded programs that were pirated in order to come up with that money, namely health and welfare, a move that will surely affect the county's low-income residents and aged.

Among state programs in jeopardy are:

- Family Planning, which is scheduled for elimination.
- A reduction in funding for Preventative Health Services to the aged.
- A $400,000 reduction in environmental health programs.
- There will be no cost of living allowances for supplemental Social Security or Aid to Families with Dependent Children programs.
- A reduction for the In-Home Support Services Program.

• A reduction of $358.7 million in Medically Indigent Services Program, which represents a 73 percent reduction in the state's general fund support for the program.

• A reduction of $80 million in the Medical Program by limiting drug funds.

What this means to Monterey County is:

- A 50 percent, or $28,000, reduction in funding for the Senior Citizen's Health Screening Program.

• While the governor is proposing an increase in hospital funding, he is initiating a new mandate for counties to reimburse private providers for emergency care to uncompensated patients.

"The county could become a blank check for uncompensated emergency care rendered by private providers," Morishita said in his report.

• The loss of $123,000 in the Greater Avenues for Independence Program.

• A reduction in $208,000 in the county In-Home Supportive Services Program, putting a cap of 70 hours per case.

• The loss of $389,000 in state support for probation programs.

THERE ARE, however, some state-funded programs that will receive additional funding next year and will prosper under the state budget allowances.

These programs include:

• A $25 million augmentation in local assistance to mental health programs. Funded from Proposition 99, this marks a 4.4 percent increase.

• An increase of $55.7 million for caseload growth in Child Welfare Services.

• A $8 million increase for Rural Economic Development Infrastructure Program.

• A substantial increase in alcohol and drug abuse prevention, treatment and rehabilitation services.

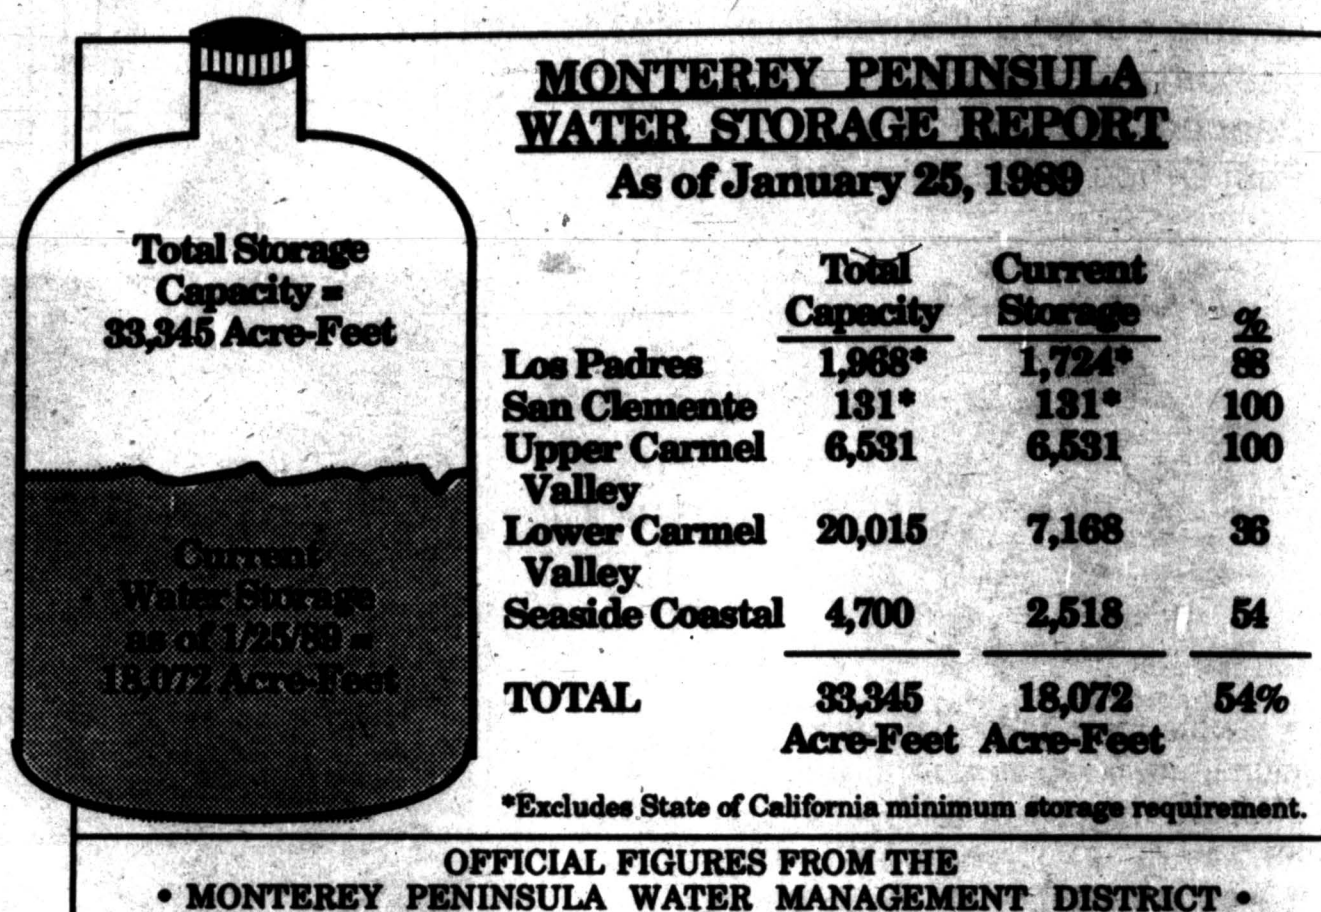

County administrators said they will continue to monitor the federal budget, which if adopted, would eliminate 82 domestic programs.

LITTLE CITY BECOMES TOO CIVILIZED

FOR VAGABOND ARTIST

Carmel-by-the-Sea, Cal., Dec. 21 (By A.P.)—This little city is becoming too civilized for the vagabond artist.

Time was when wandering and impecunious writers, painters, sculptors, playwrights, actors and others of the gentry found Carmel a haven of practical sympathy. The community took them to its heart and when they departed, tore up their I.O.U.'s and forgot. Carmel was proud of this tramp talent.

Rents were low then. It was even possible for a promising youngster to get a shack for nothing, and he could count on dining out at least three times a week. He could stay in bed the rest of the time, if necessary. A sixty-day credit with the grocer was common.

But no more. Evil days have come. Taxes and the cost of living have been growing by bounds. First came electric lights and telephones, and the migratory Bohemians stood for that. But when, recently, the city trustees decided that Carmel needed a sewer system, and levied assessments accordingly, it was too much for them.

WHICH CITY HALL?

Last week the plan for making a City Hall out of El Paseo building had only one competitor. Now, at last Wednesday's council meeting, a whole raft of proposals for city halls appeared, including last week's competitor, backed up by facts, figures and options which changed the whole setup and plans of the city council.

It is pleasant to note that all the members of the council are endeavoring to ascertain just which proposal would be most favorable to the public, none of them appearing to favor one idea over the other. There is none of this "cramming it down the people's throat" idea.

STAINED-GLASS SIGNS MUST GO

The four-foot stained-glass hamburger must go.

Also outlawed are the stained-glass fried chicken, fried egg and apple pie replicas that since December have decorated the picture windows of the Carmel Kitchen restaurant in Carmel Plaza.

The four objects, valued at $10,000, are signs and not artwork, the Board of Adjustments ruled Jan. 24. The vote was unanimous.

"They are clearly signs depicting what is sold in the restaurant," said Commissioner Sandy Swain.

Commissioner Dr. Donald Davidson agreed, saying, "I don't see how we can determine them to be anything but signs."

The matter could be appealed to the Carmel City Council.

COUNCIL TO CONSIDER WATER CONSERVATION ORDINANCE

What little water Carmel has left should be conserved for residential purposes.

That is the philosophy behind a proposed temporary water conservation ordinance to be presented to the Carmel City Council when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 7 at city hall.

The draft water conservation ordinance is designed to give the city time to develop a comprehensive water management plan. The council also will be asked to direct the planning staff to prepare the water management plan.

The city could save nearly 6 million gallons annually if the water conservation measures are imposed.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes monthly all year.

Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver. Cost is $15 for the eight-hour class.

Survey shows valley bank needed

By DAVID LELAND

IT'S BEEN almost a year since Bank of America announced the consolidation of its Carmel Village and Rio Road branches. The search continues for a fitting bank to service village residents and businesses.

And while villagers anxiously await the arrival of a new banking institution, it appears that there are several realistic factors that precipitated B of A's hasty departure, according to a study completed by San Francisco-based Gaber Associates, Inc.

To be sure, with only 9,600 people living within a six-mile radius of the village, no bank will break a record for deposits.

"The current ratio of people per bank office in California is 3,500-4,000:1," the report said. "Thus, the 9,600 people per bank office ratio in the Upper Valley reflects a void in the market place — a significant degree of underservice."

But more importantly, under the guidelines of the Carmel Valley Master Plan, growth will be limited only about 80 new houses a year for the next 20 years or so.

Moreover, many of those who live near the village will be retired and will have a "weak-to-moderate" loan demand.

"To be able to effectively compete in this market, a bank must be able to make (at least) $340,000 to each individual borrower," according to the report, which added that the average valley home runs between $250,000 and $450,000.

In order to even have a run for its money, so to speak, the bank would have to have $3 million in capitalization funding.

That is not to say the entire report is damning. On the contrary, a small, locally owned bank could prosper in a community where the average family income is expected to stand at $67,052 by 1992, according to the report.

"On balance, we feel that the report was very favorable," said Dick Nimmons, speaking for a steering committee composed of himself, Peter Coakley, Roger Williams and Randy Randazzo.

With that said, the steering committee has begun to form a board of directors with "deep pockets," which will number between 11-13 when complete. Each boardmember is being asked to contribute between $25,000 and $50,000 to join.

Nimmons said members of the board are not definite and they are "still trying to shore up the board. It's in a state of flux."

The board is also soliciting investors who are willing to chip in toward the cause of raising the $3 million required by the state to be issued a bank charter.

Once in operation, shares of stock will be offered at $10 to the general public, Nimmons said.

He added that the steering committee is currently contacting people who could serve in the chief executive officer position.

Nimmons said the steering committee would like to see a privately owned local bank in operation within a year.

WHILE THE report did discover several obstacles in operating a bank in the village, it further demonstrated that B of A could have done better at its abandoned location.

"The Bank of America did not aggressively pursue customers...and consequently, did not reap the benefits of the potential banking business emanating from the area," the report said.

Only 38 percent of the checks used to pay for goods and services in the village were drawn on B of A's village branch, the remainder were drawn on other peninsula banks, according to the report.

Those figures appear to be quite low, taking into account a marketing survey conducted last summer, where 90 percent of the respondents favored a local bank.

Ultimately, the report stated, there should be two banks in operation: one in the village and another in mid valley.

Good Egg awards

MORE THAN one hundred members and friends of the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce ate, drank, danced, and were merry at the chamber's 34th Annual Installation Dinner and Dance at Rancho Canada last Friday evening.

Cal Jepson, general manager of Carmel Valley Ranch Resort, was installed as the chamber's president for 1989. Jepson, 43, has been at Carmel Valley Ranch Resort for about three years, and previously was resident manager at the Highlands Inn for four years. A native of Ohio, Jepson lives with his wife, Toni Doyle Jepson, and one son. Mrs. Jepson is the co-owner of Resort II Me, a reservation service located in Monterey.

Also installed were Steve Austin, DDS, first vice president; Vivian Miller, manager of First Interstate Bank, second vice president; Howard Foster, All State Insurance, secretary; and Norma Wright, manager of Monterey County Bank, treasurer.

Sidney Sue Slade of Green & Slade CPAs was director of ceremonies, and toe-tapping music was provided by Bob Phillips and his quartet.

Former chamber president Paul Brocchini generously requested that the value (about $100), of the usual gift to the outgoing president be donated instead to the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center...a nice gesture on Paul's part.

The highlight of the evening's festivities — as it always it — was the naming of the 1989 recipients of the chamber's coveted Good Egg awards. This year, there were three winners — Dick Nimmons, Debbie Saxton, and Vera Stokes.

Dick Nimmons was honored for his years of community work and especially his service to the CVPOA, most recently as that organization's president. His award was presented by Roger Williams and Doug Despard.

Debbie Saxton was honored for her leadership in, and years of dedicated work with, the Park and Recreation Board, Community Center, and the CV Master Plan Committee, as well as for founding the Carmel Valley Sun. Ms. Saxton received her Good Egg from Horace (Randy) Randazzo.

Vera Stokes was honored as a Good Egg because, at 93, she still maintains an active interest in the community, is an avid and knowledgeable historian of the area, and did years of library and school work, usually involving children. Donna Tarr presented the Good Egg to Ms. Stokes.

MARVIN GOLDSTEIN, D.C., and his chiropractic assistant, Lori Ducoing, recently returned from a seminar in Las Vegas sponsored by the Parker Chiropractic Foundation as part of its continuing education program. The Las Vegas meeting was the largest gathering of chiropractic professionals in the 20th century with more than 8,000 in attendance. According to Lori, the four-day seminar was both "educational and inspirational," and the knowledge and information gained will allow Dr. Goldstein to better serve his patients. Highlight of the seminar was a talk by noted author Dr. Bernie Siegel. "It was a very positive experience," said Ducoing.

THE Carmel Valley Community Youth Center is in the process of planning one of its most popular fund-raising events, Monte Carlo Night, which, this year, will be held on Saturday, April 29. Monte Carlo Night has become a popular event not only for Carmel Valley residents, but also for people throughout Monterey County — a nearby "Las Vegas" with blackjack tables, a roulette wheel, crap table, and slot machines for those who wish to have some fun and take a chance or two on some excellent prizes. The "gambling" is run by professional croupiers.

According to CVCYC Executive Director Louise Riddell-Kaufman, CVCYC is seeking donations of merchandise and services as prizes for Monte Carlo Night winners. Also needed are sponsors for the roulette wheel, slot machines, etc. Anyone wishing to make such a donation may call Ms. Riddell-Kaufman at CVCYC, 659-3983, Mondays through Fridays, 9 a.m. to noon.

MAYBE, MAYBE not...operating on the principal that where there's smoke there's fire, we thought we'd pass along a few rumors that are anything but idle, and are gaining wide attention in Carmel Valley.

First, there are quite a few people in the CV Village area who are more than a little unhappy with the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Board. It is a fact that at least one resident has picked up a manual published by California Secretary of State March Fong Eu and entitled Procedure for Recalling State and Local Officials.

Target of the intended recall is Nick Lombardo, current chairman of the water district board. The recall procedure is lengthy and takes about three to five months. Lombardo is up for re-election in November. Thus, recall proponents now are measuring the time and effort that would be spent recalling the chairman against mounting the toughest campaign possible to defeat him in November.

Another decision recall proponents are mulling over is whether or not to include water board director Paul Davis in the recall.

The water management board's recent mailing to voters in the district engendered considerable irritation, if not downright disgust. A major factor in the overall irritation is the huge and, some say, cavalier expense of the mailing.

According to the Monterey County Registrar of Voters, there are 62,066 registered voters in the district. The mailing, sent out at bulk rate, but with a stamped (25 cents) envelope enclosed, had to cost $22,964.42 for postage alone. Printing, folding, stuffing, etc., probably added on another $7,500, so the water board spent approximately $30,000 to conduct a "census" that recipients were forced to answer under threat of reduced water rations.

Additionally, the water board mailer demanded the names of all people living in respondents' homes — again under threat of reduced water rations — and further demanded that this information be provided with a Number 2 pencil!

The mailing certainly increased already existing animosity toward the water board. It also increased the ever-present and now-growing grassroots call to "get rid of" the water board.

IT NEVER rains but it pours! (No pun intended). Now comes CVPOA's recent endorsement of a proposed $80 parcel tax that allegedly will fund capital improvements in the Carmel Unified School District. The public will vote on this proposal at a special tax election (in itself costly), on March 8. If the voters approve the $80 assessment, an $80 tax will be levied against each land parcel within the CUSD, regardless of the assessed valuation of that parcel.

Many Carmel Valley residents consider this an unfair, regressive tax because of the great disparity between Carmel Valley property values and are annoyed and unhappy about the CVPOA endorsement. Some residents are fortunate enough to live in million dollar homes; others live in plain, unadorned homes; yet all must pay the $80. Perhaps it's time to start another citizens group to offset what appears to be CVPOA's unbridled willingness to spend our money.

HAPPY FEBRUARY birthdays to Evelyn Nolt (Feb. 1), Millie Donahue (Feb. 4), Robert Larson (Feb. 9), Virginia Ford (Feb. 15), Karen Pennington and Marvin Goldstein (Feb. 16), Darren Donahue (Feb. 18), Michael Jordan, Jr. (Feb. 26), and Janet Larson (Feb. 28.) Judy is a Gestalt therapist, lecturer, and educator and is devoted to helping people work through emotional suffering.

News notes:

Panetta reports $70,994 in savings to U.S. Treasury

IN HIS annual savings report to his constituents Wednesday, Rep. Leon E. Panetta announced that he returned $70,994 to the U.S. Treasury during 1988 in office and payroll savings, as well as the return of the Congressional pay raise enacted in 1987. During his 12 years in office, Panetta has returned a total of $730,518 in savings to the Treasury.

The 1988 savings came from four categories: $11,000 from office expenses; $10,231 from office payroll; $37,663 from a House subcommittee which Panetta chairs; and $12,100 from the return of the pay raise which members of Congress began receiving in 1987.

He said that the office and subcommittee savings were the result of economies such as using reduced-fare flights, obtaining low-cost rentals of office space and equipment, limits on district-wide mailings, and careful management of his Washington and 16th District field offices.

As an example, Panetta noted that while members of Congress may issue up to six newsletters every year to each of their constituents, he sent out only one in 1987 and one in 1988.

Panetta also reported that he was present for 97 percent of House votes during 1988.

Voter registration deadline Feb. 6

THERE WILL be a special election held in the Carmel Unified School District on Tuesday, March 7.

The deadline to register to vote in this election is Monday, Feb. 6. Voters may register at the Election Department located at 201 Main St. in Salinas or forms may be picked up at many public locations throughout Monterey County.

Residents in the Carmel Unified School District can pick up forms at the post offices in Carmel and Carmel Valley, the public library and at Carmel City Hall. Persons may also call the Election Department at 647-7621 and a form will be mailed.

To be eligible to register to vote a person must be a citizen of the United States, a resident of California, at least 18 years of age on the date of the next election and not be in prison or on parole for the conviction of a felony. Inn/city garage on Lincoln and Monte Verde streets along Sixth Avenue is in compliance with the general plan.

The commission will meet at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 8 in Carmel City Council Chambers.

The proposed garage would be street level along Lincoln Street and one level above grade on Monte Verde Street. The garage would extend under the three city-owned lots on Lincoln Street.

The location, though very close to Ocean Avenue, is zoned R-1. Those who oppose the garage state that such structures are out of character for the residential district.

Building the project would establish the first multi-level public garage in town.

Proponents of the project state that realistically, the area is not within the residential district and is an opportunity to get additional parking within the commercial district.

The Pine Inn would pay for building the garage in exchange for use of the underground parking — approximately 49 spaces.

Right to privacy

COMMON LAW made an Englishman secure in the privacy of his home, his religion and his thoughts (though that privilege was not extended to the colonists). In the Constitution, we sought to guarantee to ourselves, as citizens in a new nation, those same rights through the First, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Ninth Amendments. Nowhere in the body of that document, however, can one find a specific reference to the word privacy.

The current argument for a constitutional right to privacy dates from a 1944 U.S. Supreme Court decision and other precedents. These precedents, decisions handed down by the court in many cases, have determined aspects of marriage, procreation, contraception and the rearing and education of children to be constitutionally protected from interference by the state. The privacy question became a national public issue after the abortion debate began and, particularly after the Supreme Court decision in Roe v. Wade in 1973.

In 1969 a woman in Texas was raped and became pregnant. Her doctor refused her request for an abortion because it was illegal in Texas unless the mother's life was endangered. The woman, assuming the name Jane Roe, sued Dallas District Attorney Henry Wade and the case was eventually appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court where it attracted nationwide attention because of the political and emotional appeal of the abortion issue.

In a decision that continues to be debated, the court extended the notion of a right to privacy by stating that laws prohibiting abortion provide for an unjustified intrusion by the state into a woman's "privacy" and, indeed, into her body. A previous case which provided much of the judicial logic for this decision was Griswold v. Connecticut.

When Estelle Griswold opened a birth control clinic in New individual's own body do not comprise a "sacred zone of privacy," then what hope is there or any valid right to privacy?

The concept of our individual right to privacy is one to which almost everyone subscribes. The term becomes emotionally charged when the words contraception or abortion are substituted for the word privacy. If the concept of privacy is selective, the logic of selective enforcement raises the equally perplexing question, "Who chooses which privacy right are prohibited and which are protected?"

The use of abortion as corrective, or even casual, birth control is disturbing to many of us, particularly as we learn more about the early development of the fetus. Abortions for most people are reluctantly acceptable in cases of rape, incest or threat to the mother's life. The difficulty with outlawing abortions is that many of us opposed to them have not carried to its ultimate conclusion the social consequences of such a them. It is usually easier and more productive to persuade people than to threaten them.

Rights to privacy are not limited to abortion, but it is abortion which now dominates the question. This year, the U.S. Supreme Court will consider a Missouri case which may overturn Roe v. Wade. Whatever the court's decision, the confrontation will not end and it is time for cool heads to seek rational solutions fitting a civilized society.

As Jefferson reminds us, we need be careful that we not trade a little liberty for some security, and find we have gained neither, or lost both.

Doris and Clint are Golden

THE SOCIAL life of Beverly Hills is taking on new vitality with the arrival of Ron and Nancy Reagan. Despite their arrival Bev Hills needed the presence of Carmel luminaries for the "point culminant" of the 46th Annual Golden Glove Awards — Carmel's Doris Day and Clint Eastwood.

Fans arrived early, assualting all eardrums within blocks of the Beverly Hilton Hotel as they yelled, screamed and pleaded for attention from star after star. (Nearly 200 celebrities attended.) The highest decibels of welcome were evoked by Doris Day as she entered with Terry and Jacqueline Melcher.

Two venerable hotels in Bev Hills have undergone multimillion-dollar facelifts this past year. The Beverly Wilshire (now rechristened with a "Regent" in front) and Merv (also of Carmel) Griffin's Beverly Hilton are aggressively courting charities and other Beverly bashes to bring thousands of dollars with a single benefit banquet.

Saturday evening the re-designed International Ballroom marked a big one for the Bev Hilton with 1,150 people coming to see who won the 24 Golden Globe Awards given for achievements in motion pictures (13) and television (11).

This is an important international event because the Hollywood Foreign Press Association not only confers annual awards of merit to recognize outstanding achievements, but to establish favorable relations and cultural ties between foreign countries and the USA. To promote scholarships and to focus public attention upon the best in motion pictures and television.

"Yes, it is a competition," said HFFA president Yani Begakis. "But it's a competition without negative connotations. A race for excellence...choosing between many fine achievements."

However, competitors held no challenge when HFFA voted for Ms. Doris Day to receive the Cecil B. DeMille Award for lifetime achievement in the field of entertainment, which was presented to her by last year's recipient, Clint Eastwood.

Out of the 28 DeMille awards given in the past, Doris is the seventh woman. A few of the former honorees: Bing Crosby, Fred Astaire, Judy Garland, Bob Hope, James Stewart, Bette Davis, Lucille Ball, Henry Fonda, Sidney Poitier, Laurence Olivier, Paul Newman (he was Most Promising Newcomer in 1957), Elizabeth Taylor, Barbara Stanwyck and Clint Eastwood in 1988.

It was evident that Ms. Day (who received the HFFA Film Favorite Award in 1959), was deeply touched by the tribute as Mr. E listed (only a few of), her many artistic accomplishments.

Like It's Magic (her international hit song), Doris Day brought magic to the GG Gala, receiving a standing ovation as she went to the stage to join Clint and accept her Golden Globe trophy.

All the studios used the exceptional talents of Doris Day as she quickly climbed up to become the top box office draw in the late '40s, through the '50s and '60s. She acted in hit after hit, singing along and smiling her girl-next-door smile and tugging at millions of heartstrings. Hearts opened and embraced her with love as she brought happiness to hardworking Americans back in the days when the chief (usually the only), form of entertainment was going to the movie palaces.

This outstanding singer/actress/TV star made 39 movies (1948-68), starring with such leading men as Kirk Douglas, Clark Gable, James Stewart, Frank Sinatra, Rock Hudson and Ronald Reagan (who won the Golden Globes' Hollywood Citizenship Award in 1957). This winner moved East for eight years but he's back in movieland now.

Clint Eastwood left the AT&T golf tournament to fly down, not only to present the DeMille Award to Doris, but to find out how he came out on his nomination as Best Director for Bird. He had stiff competition: Barry Levinson (Rain Man), Sidney Lumet (Running on Empty), Mike Nichols (Working Girl), Alan Parker (Mississippi Burning), and Fred Scepisi (A Cry In The Dark).

Clint won!

He proudly held his 1989 Golden Globe Award as he came backstage with Doris. They both gave me a television interview that will air this morning (Thursday), on KSBW-TV 8 on the 11:30 news. See you then.

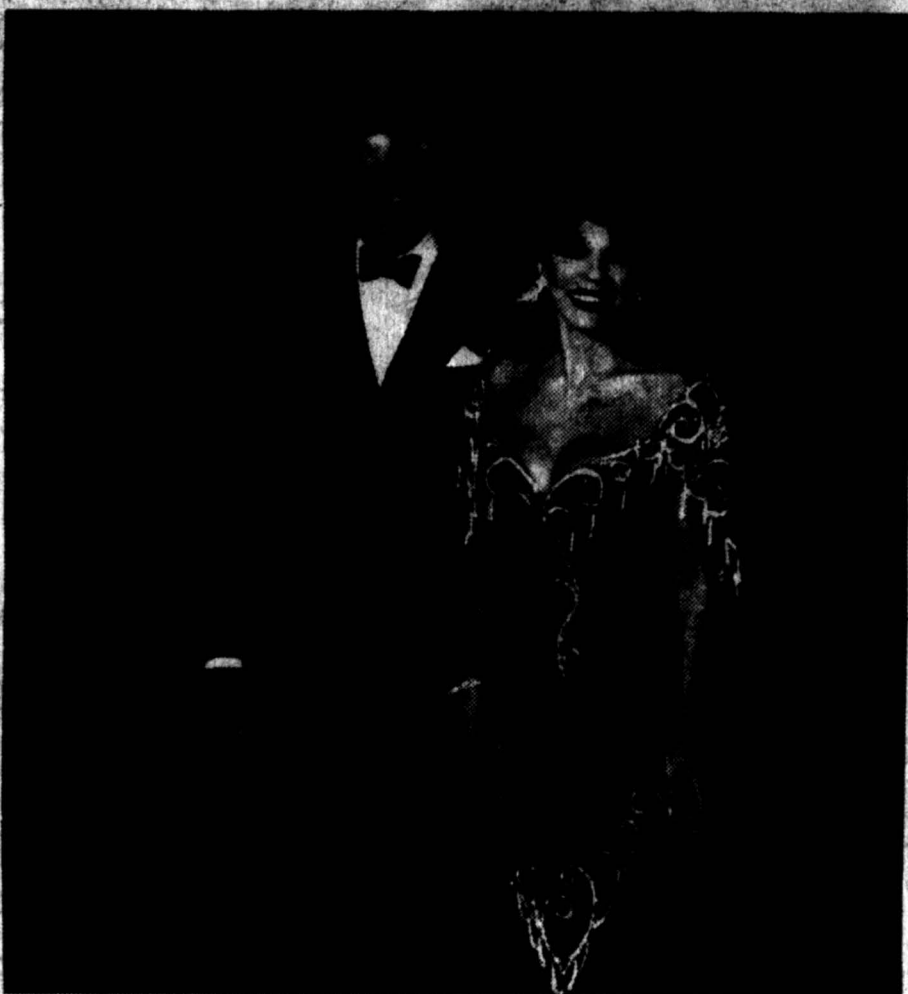

Another Carmel nominee was Terry Melcher (along with Mike Love, John Phillips and Scott McKenzie), for the hit song Kokomo that has sold 25 million records for the Beach Boys. Terry hid his disappointment at not winning under a warm smile as he visited with boyhood friends in Beverly Hills. Keep your fingers crossed, Kokomo has also been nominated for an Oscar (it was on the soundtrack for Cocktail.)

Carmel's Betty White was nominated for Best Actress and Sharon Gless (whose mother lives in Carmel), was also a nominee. Jack Lemmon (who has received several GG awards in past years), could not tear himself away from the AT&T long enough to go south. In fact, none of the five nominees for best actor attended — not even winners Michael Caine and Stacy Keach (a tie).

HAPPY CARMEL winners at the Golden Globe Awards were Clint Eastwood (Best Director award for Bird), and Doris Day, the Cecil B. DeMille award for lifetime achievement in the field of entertainment. (All Golden Globe Award photos by Philip Neswitz.)

GEORGE HAMILTON and Joan Collins were a handsome-looking team as emcees for the Golden Globe Awards ceremony.

JODIE FOSTER (left), and Sigourney Weaver (who all tied with Shirley MacLaine), clutched their Best Actress awards with Dustin Hoffman, who won Best Actor honors for his performance in Rain Man.

A RADIANT Jill Eikenberry proudly holds her award for Best Actress in a dramatic series for her work in LA Law.

NOMINEE ANGELA Lansbury chatted with fans prior to the festivities. She was accompanied by Avik Gilboa, a member of the sponsoring Hollywood Foreign Press Association.

GOLDEN GLOBE Award nominee Terry Melcher waved at a well-wisher as he entered the ballroom at the Beverly Hilton Hotel with his wife Jacqueline.

nominees were Forest Whitaker (for Bird), Gene Hackman, Tom Hulse and Edward James Olmos.

MOST LAID-BACK ACTOR was presenter Dean Stockwell, who told me he had moved from Carmel Valley back to LA because he has so much work lined up. His co-presenter, sensuous Sally Kirkland, delighted cameras in a strapless gown.

We spotted Richard Widmark as he came to the press buffet table for coffee and no one else seemed to notice him. He presented the award for Best Dramatic Motion Picture won by Rain Man.

Joan Collins and George Hamilton tied the GG Gala together as emcees. Joan was wearing a waist-cinching Bob Mackie gown. Backstage she said, "I can't wait to take it off." George wore his usual tan and smirky smile.

We missed Merv Griffin. He was off on Paradise Island (counting his billions probably), but he did take a one-half page ad in the attractive program. Dick Clark Productions produced the television show for Fox Television and Dick was there at the Warner Brothers table with Clint and others.

Although most of the ladies came swathed in black gowns — short, long, strapped or strapless — beautiful Doris Day was a sparkling standout in white.

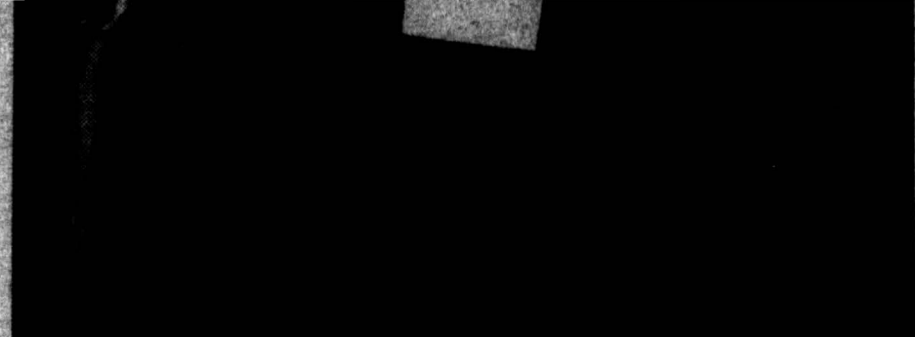

At a small party after the awards ended Doris Day told me she had talked with Alan Carr (producer of Oscars), about doing something with her good friend James Garner for Academy Award night. Hope she decides to do it.

Dennis and Karen LeVett took the golden opportunity to attend the GG Awards but headed back to PB as quickly as possible for Dennis to "hawk hotdogs" for youth charities at the AT&T and to get in a little recreational volleyball.

The officers of the HFPA, Yani Begakis, Jorge Camara, Jean E. Cummings, Maris Snoeys-Lagler, and Marianne Ruuth and the board of directors put on an evening of glamour and importance in the artistic community of film and television. They are to be commended.

All good and golden times must come to an end and soon the dinner and champagne were gone, the last award presented, the tables stripped of the topaz, orchids, gold ribbons, the Giorgio favors tucked in pockets and the glittering crowd went out to other parties or headed home.

NOT ALL of our stars were called to La-La Land for the weekend. In fact, to balance the scales, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Davis came to the Inn at Spanish Bay to give a grand golf party on Friday night. Two rooms were filled with food — one tee-off food and the other one sort of 19th hole foods — desserts. With such celebrities as Burt Lancaster, Robert Wagner and PRESENTER SHELLEY Long with winners Martin Landau (for Tucker), and Sigourney Weaver (Working Girl and Gorillas in the Mist).

NORMA JEAN Hodges was pleased as punch to be with famous actors Burt Lancaster and Robert Wagner at Marvin Davis party.

Alan Shepard and lots of local golf fans and players.

Stars entertaining the Scottish Society on Saturday evening were singer Marnie Shooter (with Myron McTavish at the piano), and Taelan Thomas portraying Robert Burns with stories, tales and memories. Jamie Kitz kicked up both heels in lively Highland dancing. Stephen Henderson served a emcee

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

The National Institute on Aging (NIA) is sponsoring extensive research on methods to reduce the incidence of hip fractures among the elderly. People over 65 account for 84 percent of the more than 200,000 hip fractures suffered by Americans each year. NIA has stepped up studies of gait, balance and posture functions, which often are altered by disease and aging. In one study, a significant decrease in muscle strength in knees and ankles was found in a group that had experienced falls. NIA also is studying methods of preventing osteoporosis, which makes bones fragile in older people.

The number of people 65 and over in the work force is expected to decrease between now and 1995, according to projections of the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). But, BLS says, this will be the fastest growing age group in the work force between 1995 and 2000.

Remember When? October 25, 1944 — Less than a week after the landing on Leyte to liberate the Philippines, two Japanese fleets almost reached Leyte Gulf in a desperate effort to sink transports and supply ships. Outnumbered United States warships turned them back, with heavy losses.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

It is easy to blame Pandora for our troubles

Carmel Pine Cone
Jan. 22, 1981

Oh Almighty and eternal God, we humbly ask Thee to open our hearts and enlighten our minds with the simple New Year's message of hope.

Thou hast graciously given us, oh Lord, a clean new diary in which to write our good deeds for your year, Ano Domini 1981. (Just in passing, Lord what happened to 1980? Is it a Communist plot that it only contained six months?)

In Greek mythology we are told how the good gods of Mount Olympus made the first woman, Pandora. They collected all the evils and miseries of the world and locked them in a strong box which they gave to Pandora with the key and instructions that she was not to turn the key over, even to lift the lid.

Now here is a chauvinistic observation—it is the ancient Greeks', not mine. Being a woman, Pandora decided to take one little peek. She did. All the devils and demons flew out—war, poverty, pestilence, famine, plague and all their nefarious progeny. As Pandora in desperation decided to jump to destruction, an angel stopped her, saying, "I am Hope. Do not fear, for good will conquer evil once again."

It is so easy to blame Pandora for that bloody open box of evil. Yet so many of the world's problems are not caused by Pandoras, nor gods, nor demigods, nor politicians, nor priests, nor prelates but by plain everyday slobs like you and me, who have not gotten the word. The word is this: The answer to all the problems of the world is service to others above self, and that is just another word for love in action. Very often we are able to rise to great heights of service to our neighbors, to strangers and even to our enemies. Yet at the same time we are unable to forgive or to be kind to members of our own family.

So here is a New Year's resolution and you can call it a miracle if you will. Try to keep it for 24 hours, or more miraculously, 25 hours:

"I promise to be a gentleman, a gentleman under my own roof, so help me God."

ANNUAL MEETING OF MONTEREY PENINSULA ART FOUNDATION

The Monterey Peninsula Art Foundation held its third annual meeting of the full membership Jan. 26 at the Community Room in the Crossroads Shopping Center.

Three people were elected to serve on the board of directors. They are Carolyn Berry, Barclay Ferguson, and Tim Robinson.

The foundation has presented speakers with no charge for admission through a bequest made by Virginia Morse. The latest will be a lecture by Jan Lassetter, well-known painter in oils, 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 18 at the Monterey Peninsula Music Room M-10.

Dick Crispo has undertaken the gathering of art supplies for Central America. Room 16 at the Sunset Center, Carmel, will be the gathering point. If anybody wants to make a donation to the MPAF for the purchase of supplies for this cause, it will be tax-deductible. If artists have partially used supplies they will be gladly accepted.

SUPERVISOR PATTON ELECTED AS NEW AIR DISTRICT CHAIR

During the Jan. 18 board of directors meeting of the Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control District, Supervisor Gary Patton (Santa Cruz County) was elected as the new 1989 air district chairman. Supervisor Mike Graves (San Benito County) was elected as the new vice chair.

Following the 1989 officers elections Supervisor Sam Karas (Monterey County) was presented with a special plaque for his outstanding service as the 1988 air district chairman.

The board of directors also took the following actions at the Jan. 18 board meeting:

- endorsed action to requesting Sen. Pete Wilson to reintroduce a bill which requires offshore oil and gas development to proceed under the same air quality regulations as would be required onshore.

less than 120,000 gallons per month and also certain allowances proposed for rural stations.

TRI-COUNTY FOOD FOR ALL COMMITTEE FORMED

A Central Coast Steering Committee has been formed to promote the Food for All program which permits supermarket shoppers to make contributions to help the hungry.

The committee consists of members from Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito counties.

Neil Thompson, project director of the Alliance on Aging's Monterey County Food Bank and a Marina resident, is co-chairman of the committee. Other Monterey County members are Rev. Josh Clements, Greenfield Food Pantry; Sylvia Flores-Grattan, Monterey County Department of Social Services in Salinas, and Lee Embrey, Carmel Valley.

Here's how the program works. Food for All displays are located near the checkstands of participating supermarkets. The displays feature bar-coded contribution cards for 50¢, $1 and $5. A shopper selects a card and gives it to the cashier, who rings up the contribution along with other food items on the bill.

Stores transfer the total amount collected to Food for All, a southern California-based non-profit organization, which in turn distributes the money to existing hunger programs.

More than two-thirds of contributions are distributed in the Central Coast area, some goes to national and international programs aimed at the root causes of hunger, and a small amount goes toward Food for All's operating expenses. The Central Coast Steering Committee expects to announce the first local grants early next month.

Nob Hill introduced the Food for All program in its 22 northern California stores late last year. Two Nob Hill stores are located in Salinas, one in Monterey and one in Greenfield.

Another supermarket chain is expected to introduce the program in the county later this year and the steering committee will be approaching independent supermarkets in the area in an effort to expand the program.

AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION PLANS FEBRUARY RESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN

More than 2,500 volunteers will call on their neighbors during February, Heart Month, for the American Heart Association residential campaign. "This drive accounts for almost 25 percent of our year's campaign funds," said Patty Bond, Central Mission Trails Chapter board chairman.

"We have seen about a 24 percent drop in deaths from heart and blood vessel disease in the last decade," Bond said. She said that money collected in this drive supports heart research and education. "We will continue to see a drop in the death rates," she believes. She added that preventative measures include stopping smoking, lowering cholesterol levels if they are elevated, and controlling high blood pressure.

She stresses that people should get treatment immediately if they suspect that they are having a heart attack. New drug treatments can dissolve blood clots that cause the majority of heart attacks, but the drugs must be administered within a few hours after symptoms begin.

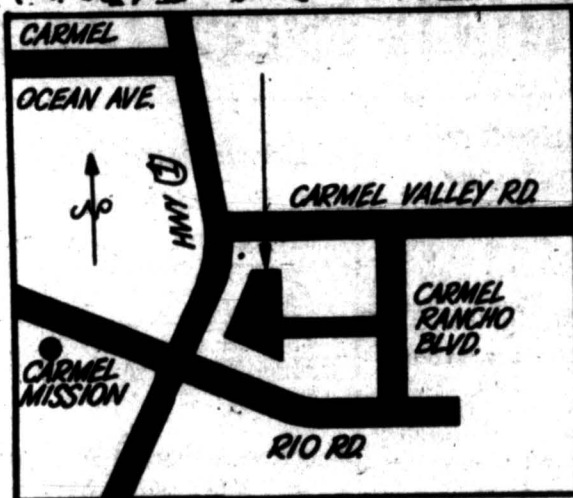

Gini Clifton is the Carmel chairman and Carolyn Rice is the Carmel Valley chairman.

CARMEL RESIDENT'S SON-IN-LAW NEW LEADER OF GUY LOMBARDO'S ROYAL CANADIANS

Al Pierson, the son-in-law of Marian Gilman, a long-time resident of Del Mesa Carmel, will take up the baton for the famous Guy Lombardo Orchestra, on Feb. 12, with the blessings of the Lombardo family.

In assuming the direction of Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians, Al Pierson is ideal, said orchestra representatives. He is an accomplished composer, arranger, pianist and vocalist, with a master's degree in music. He has been performing on the national and international band circuits for the past 14 years with his own band, Al Pierson Big Band U.S.A., performing over 300 dates each year. Pierson's talents allow him a versatility in the type of engagement he plays: dances, concerts, shows, etc. He has been referred to as "Mr. Personality" by most because of his ability to communicate with the people.

Mrs. Gilman, who was born in New York and spent most of her life in Chicago, moved to Carmel 20 years ago. She is an artist and has done several album covers for Pierson's recordings. Her daughter married Pierson 11 years ago. The Piersons spent Christmas in Carmel, and visit the peninsula regularly.

Permit Us.

We have come to stay—

Yes, we know you have read the foregoing statement before, but let us conclude the sentence.

—as long as the general public and the business interests of Carmel prosper us or suffer us to remain.

To permit this journal to struggle and languish—and mayhap die—would be a far greater black-eye and loss to the community than to the publisher.

The foundation for the establishment of this weekly publication is a profound confidence in the future—and that not distant—prosperity of our beloved Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Every resident, be he business man, artist, writer, mechanic or laborer, should be as much interested in the ultimate success of this, your "hum" paper, as the publisher.

As one resident puts it, "the advent of a newspaper into a community is the beginning of a new era."

Begin To-day.

You owe it to yourself no less than to your village to patronize the home merchant.

The local store-keeper has a perfect right to expect you to expend your money in his place of business.

He lives here, pays taxes, contributes generously to various funds both for charity and art, and takes a vast interest in the material progress of the community.

If his prices, in your opinion, are too high, tell him so. Show him the error of his way.

Sending money to mail-order concerns helps the place where you reside not one whit.

If you do not happen to see on display what you desire do not assume that he does not carry the object, but ask for it.

Spend your money at home—where it will do most good.

Read "Pine Cone" ads.

After visiting the Panama Pacific or San Diego Expositions, rest at Carmel.

Digest This.

Those who are interested in Carmel are not devoting their lives to the mere making of money. They do not buy property to speculate. They buy because they have use for the purchase. They come to make permanent homes; and when they really want anything they are willing to pay for it what it is worth.

The existence of the community, now estimated to be about 600, with a summer increase to 1200, is rapidly bringing metropolitan conveniences, and this has in the past added and will in the future add rapidly to the value of property.

The so-called unearned increment is an increase brought about by the community of interest of a number of people devoted to social and economic needs of a similar character, and is really the product of the community itself.

The increase in the past is but a small criterion of what it is destined to be in Carmel in the near future.

Get the moral.

Before summer is upon us it is to be hoped that something will be done toward providing adequate fire-fighting apparatus.

If Billy Sunday should come to Carmel, what would he find? Signed replies may be published in the Pine Cone.

Impressions of Carmel

By ARGYLL CAMPBELL

On my way here last summer the Carmel motor stage chugged its way to the crown of a hill, swung around a sharp turn, and brought to view through the spaces of a forest a bay blue as that of Naples and an altogether impossible sunset.

The unexpected beauty of the scene held the passengers silent for a moment; then an enthusiastic young woman exclaimed:

"Isn't it too grand for anything?"

"Adorable!" agreed her companion.

These two young women, no doubt, sensed the the loveliness they looked upon but were unable to adequately translate their realization to words.

I find myself hampered by a similar inaptness of expression in endeavoring to give my impressions of Carmel.

However, as California is the garden of America, so, to me, is Carmel its Eden. Here the pines, and hills and waters meet, and the north and south join hands under skies as blue as Italy boasts. The cool filter of ocean fog tempers the down-beat of the sun in summer when the inland swelters in the heat. In the winter, if we may call it such, the fog withdraws to the edge of the sea to take a colorful part in the indescribable sunsets, leaving Carmel to be flooded with the unhindered rays of the sun.

Here is the verdure of the North without its storms, and the warmth of the South without its aridity. Of all California it was Carmel that the sweet-souled Serra loved—and those of us who have followed here will understand.

PLANT TREES

What do we plant when we plant the tree?

We plant the ship which will cross the sea;

We plant the mast to carry the sails,
We plant the plank to withstand the gales,

The keel, the keelson, and beam and

We plant the ship when we plant the tree.

We plant the houses for you and me;
We plant the rafters, the shingles, the floors,

We plant the studding, the laths, the doors,

The beams and siding, all parts that be;

We plant the house when we plant the tree.

What do we plant when we plant the tree?

A thousand things that we daily see;
We plant the spire that out-towers the

crag,
We plant the staff for our country's flag,

We plant the shade, from the hot sun

free;
We plant all these when we plant the tree.

Ballad of the Pine Cone

By Herbert Heron

The growing pine-cone hangs upon the tree,
Protected by the needles like a screen;
Clear indication of the cone to be:

Now young and full of sap, a tender green--

The springtime softness of the nectarine--

So rich in promise, though but new and small,

Among the elder boughs the sea-winds glean,

And every little while the pine-cones fall.

The changing pine-cone, now a harmony

Of emerald and russet brown, is seen:

By Nature's wonderful and firm decree

Turning through sunlight to a finer sheen

(As a young princess turns into a queen).

The sea-wind rises, and a sudden squall

Comes on the larger boughs that swing serene,

And every little while the pine-cones fall.

The ripened pine-cone sways above the lea--

Ripe nut that tinkles like a tambourine:

As fine a cone as one would wish to see.

Firm in the growth of seasons strong and clean--

Holding its fruit till winds shall intervene;

Its color now a perfect brown, where tall

Bright summer suns have softly kissing been . . .

And every little while the pine-cones fall.

The Carmel Pine Cone bursts upon the scene,
With youth and sap, with color, fruit and all;
Our local press, our weekly magazine . . .
And every little while the Pine Cones fall.

Silvio and Elizabeth Frank wage war with the evil genius Count Draco and search for the pearl of confidence.

The Pacific Grove-based couple are members of an exclusive coterie: professional puppeteers who stage a show they wrote themselves using characters of their own design. They present The Magic Pearl of Illion to hundreds of children each year, in such diverse settings as schools, malls and the Pumpkin Festival at Half Moon Bay.

"This is completely original. We didn't watch any television for almost 10 years so we didn't know about the Muppets," notes Elizabeth, whose graceful gestures reveal her years of ballet training and performance.

"Our show is very exciting. We use smoke and water effects, we try to make them love what we do," exclaims Silvio, whose job it is to make magical effects happen.

The Franks, who together form The Magic Pearl Puppet Theatre, have been staging the same story since the mid-'70s. The Magic Pearl of Illion tells of Giovanni's search for confidence in Illion, the land of his dreams. With the help of the Star Fairy, he conquers Count Draco, the evil genius of Illion, who wants the Pearl of Confidence for himself.

While the plot remains the same, the show has become more richly embroidered and skillfully produced with the growth of the Franks' expertise.

Elizabeth Frank discovered her love of puppetry when she was attending library school in Denver.

"I did my first puppet show there, and I must say it was so good that — well, they taped it," she recalls.

Violinist Camilla Wicks solos with Bay Symphony chamber group

THE MONTEREY Bay Symphony's Chamber Orchestra by the Sea will present its Barnet Segal Memorial Concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 3 in Sunset Theater, Carmel. The concert features violinist Camilla Wicks in the Beethoven "Violin Concerto" and the Ravel "Tzigane for Violin and Orchestra."

Also on the program, conducted by Malcolm Seagrave, will be Mozart's Symphony No. 41 ("the Jupiter").

Doors will open at 7:30 for open seating, and a brass quintet will play on stage while the audience is being seated.

Tickets may be purchased for $10 each by calling Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

Debuting at New York's Town Hall when she was only 13 years old, Camilla Wicks has played as a soloist with the Hollywood Bowl Orchestra, the Los Angeles Philharmonic, the New York Philharmonic, and the Chicago Symphony, among other major orchestras in both the United States and Europe.

Beginning in the 1960s, Wicks became increasingly devoted to teaching, and she has served on the faculties of a number of universities, including the University of Washington, the University of Southern California, the University of Michigan, the Royal Academy of Music in Oslo, Norway, and the Banff Center for Performing Arts. She is currently a Professor of violin in the Shepherd School of Music at Rice University. This year she is presenting performances of the Tchaikovsky and the Beethoven violin concertos with orchestras in Washington, California, and Texas, and she will conduct a master class and a recital tour in Norway during the summer.

Receiving his doctorate in composition and conducting at the Eastman School of Music, Malcolm Seagrave served many years as a professor of music and as a conductor before moving to Carmel in 1976, where he has been a conductor, a freelance composer, and a teacher, particularly of piano. He is well known on the Monterey Peninsula for his performances with Hidden Valley and his music reviews for Pacific/Prelude Magazine. Last year, he conducted Stefan Petroff's Monterey Pops Orchestra at Laguna Seca as a benefit for the music programs in Monterey County public schools.

VIOLINIST CAMILLA Wicks will solo with the Monterey Bay Symphony Chamber Orchestra by the Sea in a concert of works by Beethoven and Ravel. Conducted by Malcolm Seagrave, the concert will begin at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 3 in Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel. Admission is $10. For details and reservations, call 649-5561.

Tokyo String Quartet performs once again in Carmel

THE TOKYO STRING Quartet will perform Sunday, Feb. 5 at Sunset Theater in Carmel, brought here under the auspices of the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula. Their concert will begin at 8 p.m.

The quartet, in its sixth visit to Carmel, will perform Schubert's "Quartet in B-flat major," D. 112 (Op. 168); Bartok's "Quartet No. 3"; and Beethoven's "Quartet in F major," Op. 59, No. 1. Members of the ensemble are violinists Peter Oundjian and Kikuei Ikeda, violist Kazuhide Isomura, and cellist Sadao Harada.

The Tokyo Quartet, now in its 18th season, is internationally celebrated as one of the world's great quartets. Its performances on five continents include appearances in music capitals throughout the globe. In North America it appears each year on scores of distinguished chamber music series and at colleges and universities. It regularly performs in all of New York's major halls, with engagements in Lincoln Center's "Great Performers" series and Mostly Mozart Festival, Carnegie Hall's "Great Quartets" series, the 92nd Street Y's "Distinguished Artists" series and at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The quartet appears annually at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. and at Yale and American universities, where the members are artists-in-residence. Recently the quartet has performed on the PBS and CBS television networks.

The quartet has recorded for DGG, CBS Masterworks, Vanguard, RCA, Vox Cum Laude and Angel-EMI. Their recordings have earned the Grand Prix du Disque de Montreux, awards from Stereo Review and three Grammy nominations. The Tokyo String Quartet plays on four instruments created by Nicolo Amati between 1656 and 1677 which have been loaned the ensemble by the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

Peter Oundjian, violinist, joined the quartet in 1981. A native of Toronto, he began his studies in London and is winner of the Gold Medal at the Royal College of Music. He continued his studies at Juilliard where he received his master's degree. In 1980 Oundjian won first prize in the International Violin Competition in Vina del Mar, Chile. He is active as a soloist, particularly with major Canadian symphonies.

Kikuei Ikeda, violinist, studied at the Toho Music Academy. He has been soloist with major orchestras in Japan and toured Europe as concertmaster of the Toho String Orchestra. In this country he studied chamber music with members of the Juilliard Quartet at Juilliard. Ikeda is a prize winner in the Haken Competition in Japan, Washington International String Competition, and Vienna da Motta in Portugal.

cellist; and Kazuhide Isomura, violist. The ensemble will perform at 8 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 5 at Sunset Theater in Carmel. For information about tickets, call 625-2212.

Kazuhide Isomura, violist, is a graduate of the Toho Music Academy. Upon arrival in this country he became assistant concertmaster of the Nashville Symphony.

Sadao Harada, cellist, is a graduate of the Toho Music Academy, having begun his studies with his father. He won first prize at the Mainichi Music Concourse and, following a year as principal cellist with the Tokyo Symphony, became first cellist with the Nashville Symphony. He appeared as soloist with many orchestras before making the decision to pursue a career in chamber music.

Single tickets are $10 ($5 for those under 21), and are available at the door before the concert.

For information call 625-2212.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

A collective feast

THE JAZZ SCHEDULE in hand today resembles the menu of an especially good restaurant. One could call upcoming events a collective feast for our ears. Consider these items:

—Powerful pianist McCoy Tyner works Kuumbwa Jazz Center in Santa Cruz on Monday night (2/6). His trio includes men of great technique as well as manifest strength: bassist Avery Sharpe and Louis Hayes at the drums.

Tyner was part of John Coltrane's group when John laid down such classic tracks as A Love Supreme and Impressions. Coltrane once said: "McCoy has taste. He can take anything—no matter how weird—and make it sound beautiful." The Tyner unit has another album scheduled for release in April from Capitol Records.

It's $13 per person with sets at 7:30 and 9:30. Center Stage Ticketing handles advance arrangements.

If you miss the Kuumbwa gig and don't mind driving up, McCoy and mates will be at Yoshi's in Oakland later this month (2/15-19). "Due to his unfailing popularity," management reports, "we will be presenting a special Sunday performance."

—Monterey Brewing Company on Cannery Row has put together a Mardi Gras Masquerade Ball for Saturday night (2/4). Fog Street Blues Band, costumes, sidewalk parade, champagne. Whole thing blasts off at eight o'clock.

—No cover charge at the Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club as extraordinary vocalist Kitty Margolis blows in from San Francisco. She'll be there Tuesday and Wednesday nights (2/7-8).

The first evening will showcase the duo of Kitty and high-level pianist Dick Hindman from Pacific Grove. A trio will back her on Wednesday—Dick, Colin Bailey on drums, bassist Scott Steed.

Miss Margolis has a deep bag of tunes along with humor, awareness, real affection for the audience. First set at nine o'clock both nights.

—Bill Berry will front Bay Club sets next Thursday night (2/9). The outstanding trumpet and cornet man serves Monterey Jazz Festival as music director and has his own Los Angeles big band.

Appearing with Bill will be pianist Smith Dobson, drummer

Vince Lateano, Buddy Jones on bass. Again—no cover.

And: Smith and Gail Dobson (2/2), JB and the Nightshift (2/3), Chris Cain (2/4), Bob Phillips (2/5), Duo Du Jour (2/6).

—Monterey Peninsula reedman John Cortes will lead his quartet into the San Francisco venue called Kimball's on Thursday evening (2/9). With knockout pianist John Donaldson, Pat Klobas on bass, drummer Dan Sanbanovich (he worked with Joe Henderson and Larry Grenadier for about a year and a half).

Cortes takes four saxophones to every job—alto, tenor, soprano, bery. On Friday night (2/3) he will be interviewed for an hour by jazz radio host A.J. Gallardo over KALW-FM in San Francisco.

—Word just came in on a benefit for Pastor Bill Little's Pacific Coast Church in Pacific Grove. Pianist Bobby Phillips says the "jazz concert, dance and ragtime bash" will be staged on Friday evening (2/10) at the Robert Down School auditorium.

Talent roster features Papa Jake Stock and his Abalone Stompers plus Bob, Andrew Fielding and Chris Calabrese playing ragtime piano. Phillips: "We'll place pianos at different points around the large facility. Dancers will be encouraged during the concert."

Tickets available at the door—$8 apiece. Starts at eight o'clock.

HER VOICE, intelligence, presence and love of jazz identify her as a natural. And so localite Lisa Richmond will do a brand new show on KRML Jazz Radio starting Saturday afternoon (2/4) at two o'clock.

The hour-long weekly format: Jazz Continental. She'll survey the jazz scene as it thrives outside the United States.

A thorough professional in the design field (interior, architectural, landscaping, graphics, media outreach), Lisa worked at modeling and television commercials while taking two degrees at New York University and then getting her business off the ground. School years also put her in touch with Greenwich Village jazz rooms—"quite a mind-opener for a suburban kid."

Show producer Johnny Adams (KRML's leading on-air personality) says nine countries will be represented each week. All music—live concert albums, foreign radio broadcasts, club dates, studio sessions—will come from his private collection.

THE NEXT Monterey Bay Blues Festival shan't erupt till June 24-25. But board members put forth a most worthy wish and thought: keep that roots music alive in public awareness all year around.

It's hoped that a series of dances will help accomplish this announced goal. The initial event has been scheduled for the second Saturday night of February (2/11) in the Monterey Room on county fairgrounds. Nine o'clock kick.

An outstanding blues unit from Oakland—Bobby Reed and WILL'S WAY—Jazz photographer Will Wallace of Pacific Grove snapped brilliant British reedman Courtney Pine when Courtney played Kuumbwa Center not long ago.

the Surprise Band—will play down-in-the-trenches sets. Personnel: Bobby on bass and vocals, singer Sarah Livingston, sax man Carl Green, Théotis Ealey (guitar), John Middleton (trumpet), keyboardist David Savage, Scott Harris behind his drums.

Each ticket costs $10 in advance or $12.50 at the door. Ducats available through Broadway Deli (394-8055), Royal Barber Shop (394-7600), Franklin Washington (899-5216).

• Don't forget the Jazz Brunch from 12:30-2:30 Sunday afternoons at Silver Jones Restaurant in The Barnyard. Bob Phillips and the jazz flutes of Kenny Stahl.

Kenny will lead weekly sessions throughout February at Jimmy's American Place (Carmel Rancho Center). Tuesday nights.

Clarence Darrow

Clarence Darrow, a one-person play by David W. Rintels, concludes its run at Cherry Hall in Carmel. The play is presented by the Monterey Peninsula College Drama Department and the Cherry Foundation.

Jim Jensen portrays the famous attorney reminiscing about his long career. Touching on many of his trials, including the significant "Monkey" trial and the sensational Loeb-Leopold trial, Darrow reviews much of America's legal history with salty humor, courtroom gusto and human relish.

Darrow's private life and many contemporary events, including labor conditions, are woven into this story of a man who accepted unpopular cases and defended unpopular causes. Rintels' play is based on Clarence Darrow for the Defense by Irving Stone.

Nick Zanides directs Clarence Darrow. Final performances are set 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Feb. 2-4. There will also be a matinee at 2 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 4. Reservations should be made by calling 624-7491 or the Center Stage theater box office at 649-5561.

County symphony celebrated Spain

THE MONTEREY County Symphony presented the second of its three scheduled pops concerts on Saturday, Jan. 28, at Sherwood Hall in Salinas. Entitled "A Celebration of Spain," it featured dancers Angela Del Moral and Pascual Olivera on a program that was a Spanish (and Mexican and Cuban) sampler. There was a bit of this, a little of that — well, it was designed to be fun, not profound, and certainly the audience was enthusiastic.

Answer to last week's puzzle impression; the Cuban Lecuona's hit "Malaguena" and the Mexican favorite, "La Bamba," were eyed.

Del Moral and Olivera danced more than half the program, so it was something of a dance extravaganza. Many styles of Spanish dancing were represented, demonstrating that flamenco is not the be-all and end-all of Spanish dance, exciting though it may be in the feet of master dancers.

Both dancers bring considerable background to this work, and they operate well as a team (which is a good thing, as they are husband and wife). The choreography, presumably mostly their own since only once was a choreographer mentioned, is rather balletic, with smooth, sophisticated moves. After a while, there got to be a predictability about it that was a bit wearisome, but there was something for everyone along the way. Personally, I greatly enjoyed seeing the classical Spanish jota; and the Basque dance, a solo by Del Moral, was charming. It requires her to land on top of a wine glass, and she pulled it off two out of three times. Try it — but use plastic.

A "Zarabanda" was a curious bit of choreography — and a curious bit of dance history. This dance, better known now as the sarabande, does have a checkered history, having been outlawed by Philip II, a prude. Some relatively recent research indicates it may be a New World dance, imported to Spain by the conquistadores. This one had a lot of Arab influence, which may or may not be historically accurate. In any case, the dance was not very successful (though technically well executed), being an uneasy conglomeration of moves from various cultures. No doubt this happens all the time, but that doesn't make it work on stage.

The one flamenco piece, a "Zapateado" by Monreal, was disappointing. Olivera did it as a solo dance and, while his foot work was impressive, his body lacked the tension and sheer animal energy of a really fine flamenco dancer.

But that is only two dances — there was some very fine work. Both performers have a good comic flair, and the "Old Madrid Suite" of Surinach was charming and funny. The Rodrigo movement was a wedding dance, choreographed for them, and was very lovely.

Olivera's remarks were amusing — he is a real showman — sometimes enlightening, sometimes cute. Mention must also be made of his stunning castanet playing in a Gimenez piece.

A symphony orchestra, rather than a guitar with perhaps a few other instruments, is difficult here as it is destined to be a bit stiff. However, the audience reaction indicated they didn't mind, and the evening was, on the whole, enjoyable.

Besides, who will ever forget Clark Suttle stomping off the stage twirling his coat like a cape?

THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzzaitis

Life of a salesman

THE GROVEMONT THEATER Arts Center has reopened after a hiatus for remodeling and reorganizing. They have picked David Mamet's controversial and explosive play, Glengarry Glen Ross, as their re-entry vehicle.

The play deals with a "boiler room" full of "real estate" shysters who bilk unsuspecting souls into buying worthless lots in Florida. On top of the sleazy skills that they use in their trade, add the innate jealousy, suspicion, and hostility that arises from that competitive milieu. Finally, add that rich male locker room idiom, together with ethnic epithets that will either amuse or disgust you, yet without which, the play would not be possible. Add it all up and you have the theater event of the season.

"No honor among thieves" could be the subtitle of the piece. From the first moment in Act One we see this principle at work. One of the principals, Shelly Levene, played by John Rousseau, is defending himself to his boss, John Williamson, played by Stephen Moorer, in regard to his poor sales performance. Since Shelly hasn't had a sale in a while, he will no longer be given the Class A customer "leads" and will have to make do with those less rewarding ones from Class B. Shelly argues long and hard but to no avail. Later he will avenge himself.

The balance of Act One consists of more tete-a-tetes between other salesmen; Dave Moss, played by Michael Jacobs, Richard Roma, played by Ron Cohen, and George Arronow, played by Jim Webber. Seeing so many versions of the killer instinct, especially pitted against each other, is breathtaking. Cohen, Jacobs, and Rousseau are so good it's scary. Moorer is the Office Manager and is the butt of the wrath of all the salesmen at one time or the other. He takes it pretty well since he does hold all the cards. (Art imitates life here in that the actors get to kick Moorer, the show's producer, around while in role.)

Act two opens to reveal that there has been a burglary in the office and the Class A leads are missing. We did hear some discussion of this in Act One, but it sounded more like wishful thinking. The tone of the play drops another octave. Add theft, perhaps conspiracy, to the plot and things can only get meaner. A detective shows up to "interview" each man to gather evidence. He adopts rough tactics to match those of his suspects. Jerry Carlton gives us a very plausible tough guy cop.

The final blows consist of a hapless customer, James Ling, played by Mark Heckman, who comes in to get his money back, and a too-good-to-be-true deal that Shelly brings in. We almost expect a Greek chorus, perhaps laughing maniacally instead of wailing, as the deals begin to unravel.

There are no women in this play, save the spirit of Ling's wife sending him to get their money back. This enables Mamet to unleash the unbridled hunter-killer testosterone that energizes the piece. It is strenuous to watch because of the heightened tension and the uproarious laughter that we alternate between. I found it an exhilarating experience and it was one that brought many in the audience to their feet at the end of the show.

The newly remodeled GroveMont has more room and more of an in-the-round feeling to it. I hope this is as big as it gets, however, because a loss of intimacy would probably result if it got any larger. The additional seats are snaked in along the east wall, without seeming to take away from the stage. The sets, a Chinese Restaurant in Act One and the tacky office in Act Two, are by D. Thomas Beck. The costume design by Lady Ramirez-Hull made these polyester princes look right in character.

LEVENE (John Rousseau, right), brags to ROMA (Ron Cohen) over his recent "big" sale in David Mamet's Glengarry Glen Ross. The award-winning drama is the opening work in the new season of plays at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center.

This opening effort was given special treatment in that GroveMont brought in a big city director, Jeremy Slate, star of stage, screen, and television. Mr. Slate gave us a bare knuckled rendition of a play that begs to be handled that way.

Nothing happens 'til somebody sells something. I saw a poster once in a sales office that extolled this sentiment. I remembered it through Willy Loman and sales jobs I have held, and it comes to mind again — Mamet's play is a cynical view of why salesmen go wrong. Why they sell bad goods, and by implication, why they sell OK goods in bad ways. It deals with what can happen when salesmanship runs amok. This play is excellent theater, but more than that, it leaves you more prepared for the jungle out there than you might realize.

Glengarry Glen Ross plays Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays at 8 p.m. through Feb. 18 at GroveMont Theater Arts Center, 320 Hoffman Ave., Monterey. Phones 649-6852, 649-0340. Tickets available through Center Stage Ticketing — 649-5561.

201 The Crossroads (Jeffers Way) Carmel

Ellis is presently professor of organ and music theory, and is university organist and carillonneur at the University of Montana in Missoula, a position he has held since 1969. In addition he is organist-choirmaster at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Spirit. Other teaching positions include Hardin-Simmons University, Kansas State Teachers' College and the University of Kansas.

A native of North Dakota, Ellis received his bachelor and master of music degrees from the University of Michigan, and in 1975 was awarded a doctor of musical arts degree "with honors" from the University of Kansas. His organ teachers include James west regional conventions of the American Guild of Organists.

Three times he has been the featured artist for the Pops Concert of the Missoula Symphony Orchestra, playing on the theater organ. He performs on the harpsichord with the Montana Baroque Ensemble and the String Orchestra of the Rockies.

Friday's concert is scheduled to include works by J.S. Bach, Schumann, Sokola, Handel, Widor, Alain and Durufle.

Admission is $7 general, and $5 for students, senior citizens and the military. For additional information, contact the church at 372-5875.

Couple designs puppets, show

"Elmarie was instrumental in helping us. She let us practice at the Pacific Grove Art Center. She was kind of our guardian angel," says Silvio.

"There were no schools to show you how to build these puppets, so I had to make my first puppet — a witch — out of papier mache," Elizabeth adds. "We still use that puppet. Every show Silvio throws it out into the audience and the kids scream. And you know we always get it back."

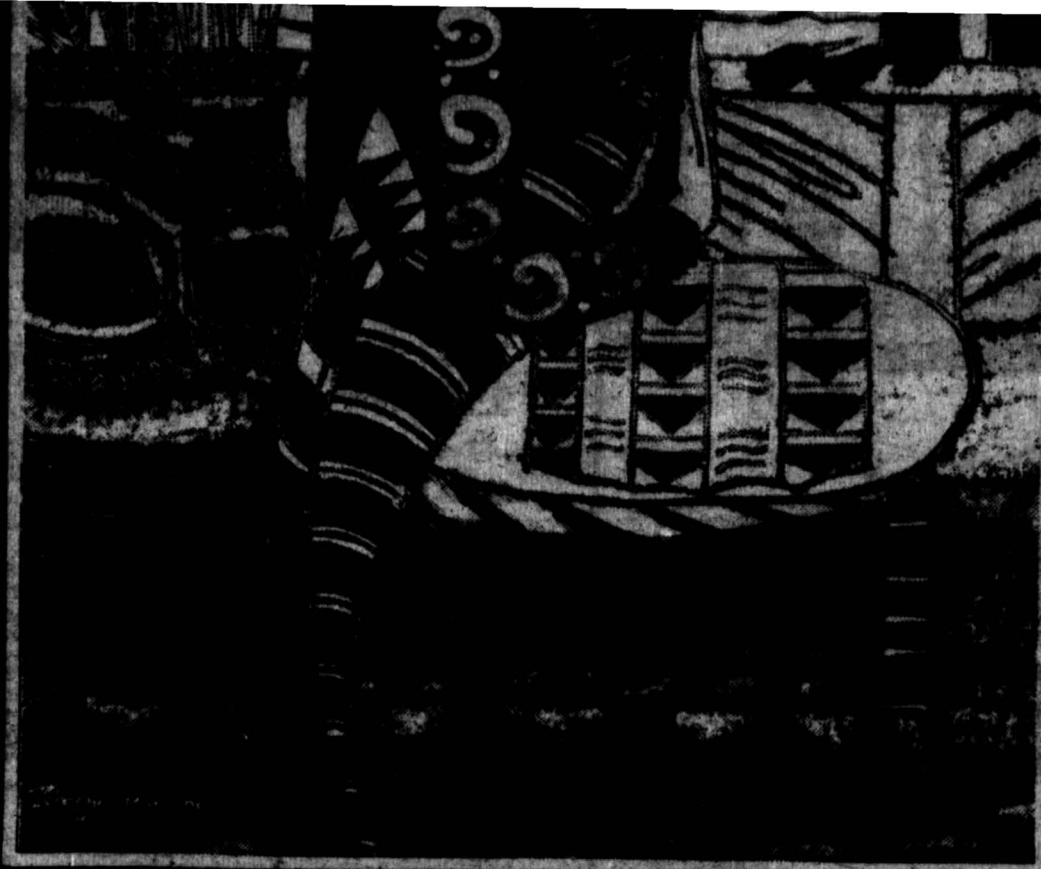

The puppet population of Illion has grown to 15 members. Using Silvio's sound effects, the appearance of Elizabeth as the Star Fairy and an occasional bow by their rabbit, Angel, the Frank's assemble a lively show.

"I spray the kids with water. It's a very tactile show. We continually add sound effects, nothing is taped. We improvise the dialogue. We added a marionette — we're always growing," Silvio exclaims.

The Franks seem untiring in their enthusiasm for The Magic Pearl of Illion. They are creating a Spanish language version for the enjoyment of their audiences who struggle with English. Among their upcoming performance dates is a Saturday, Feb. 4 show in the storyteller's room of Thunderbird for Kids in The Barnyard, Carmel. Once again, the Star Fairy will help Giovanni in his search for confidence. The show will begin at 11 a.m., and there is a charge of $2 for children and $3 for adults.

"It's an extremely exhausting exercise," confirms Silvio.

State of otter population presented

Unusual findings from an ongoing sea otter research study will be reported in a slide lecture by Marianne Riedman, Ph.D., director of the Monterey Bay Aquarium's Sea Otter Research Program, who will be the featured speaker at the annual meeting of the Point Lobos Natural History Association.

This event, open to the public with no admission charge, will begin at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, Feb. 4, at the Carmel Women's Club, Ninth and San Carlos, Carmel.

That individual sea otters are so much inclined to "do their own thing" has been a surprise to Dr. Riedman and her associates in the study she directs. The program is much greater in scale and continuity than any research into the behavior of wild sea otters ever before attempted.

Ten people, five aquarium staff members and five volunteers, work on the project, in which individual tagged otters have been observed from Point Lobos to Santa Cruz for the past four years.

Of more than 100 tagged otters recorded, about 50 individuals are "regulars," whose behavior patterns concerning feeding ecology, use of tools, socialization, and reproduction are intriguing—and entertaining—to the researchers.

"When you watch these little creatures over a period of time, you can't help thinking of them almost as friends," says Dr. Riedman. "We've given some of them descriptive names. Cola, who uses a bottle as a tool. Squiggly, who prefers to eat octopus. Porky, a chowhound whose tool is a huge flat concrete slab. Supermom, an old female who has had a lot of pups and takes wonderful care of them."

"At the end of the day we get together and gossip about what our little friends have been doing. Porky is trying to wean her pup. Splotch-head chased a young male intruder out of his territory. Supermom has mated this time with Lovers Point Male—there's life in the old girl yet!"

A marine biologist, Dr. Riedman has two new books coming out this spring: The California Sea Otter (for the Monterey Bay Aquarium) and The Pinnipeds: Seals, Sea Lions, and Walruses (University of California Press).

MARIANNE L. Riedman, Ph.D., director of the Monterey Bay Aquarium's Sea Otter Research Program, will outline the progress of her facility during a free lecture.

Auditions set for Forest Theater productions

DIRECTOR Cole Weston has announced that auditions for A Moon for the Misbegotten, a drama by Eugene O'Neill, will be held Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 4-5, at the Forest Theater, Santa Rita and Mountain View, Carmel from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

According to Weston, "We need 5 husky muscular type characters, four men and one large-bosomed woman." It is a story believed to be the fictional counterpart of O'Neill's elder brother. Misbegotten will be the first presentation of the 1989 summer season in Carmel's Outdoor Forest Theater. For further information, call Weston at 624-7165.

Auditions for actors, singers, dancers and technicians for Seven Brides for Seven Brothers, directed by Dale Lefler, will be held Saturday, March 25 from 9 a.m. to noon and 2 to 4 p.m. at the theater. The musical is based on Stephen Vincent Benet's

The Sobbin' Women, screenplay by Albert Hackett with lyrics by Johnny Mercer.

The second musical will be the oft-revived and popular Show Boat from the novel by Edna Ferber, book and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein 2nd, music by Jerome Kern. Director Hamish Tyler will be holding auditions on Saturday, April 1 and Sunday, April 2 from 9 a.m. to noon and 2 to 4 p.m., also at the Forest Theater. Show Boat will require a cast of approximately 19 women, and 5 men, featuring such familiar musical numbers as, "Ol Man River," "Why Do I Love You," and "Only Make Believe." The show was originally produced by Florenz Ziegfeld in 1927.

The Forest Theater was started by Herbert Heron in 1910 and was the first open air theater in California. It was established as a self-supporting community enterprise with members promoting, photographing, directing, acting and writing the whole show with no salaries even considered.

PALO COLORADO artist Jo Smart has created "Studies in Class," a classical collection of works devoted to the eloquence of the human form. The collection can be viewed through March 1 at Portofino Cafe, located downstairs in the Pacific Grove Plaza, 620 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove.

A reception in honor of the artist will take place 7 to 9 p.m. Friday, Feb. 3, at the cafe. The cafe is open 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Born in Cape Prince of Wales, Alaska in 1935, Smart has spent most her life in perpetual motion. On treks through the Yukon and along the John Muir Trail at age 5, with her author/lecturer parents Bill and Ruth Albee, and the National Geographic Society in tow, she began to develop her love for nature's forms and colors. These early rhythms flow, in fluid lines and sensual shadows, throughout all her work.

Her artistic talents already apparent at an early age, she began formal art training in 1946 in Washington, D.C., moving to the Honolulu Museum of Art a year later. In 1950, after settling in Carmel with her parents and brothers, she began studies with Alexander Weyers. As an adult, she has worked with Richard Yip, Dick Crispo, George deGroat, James Soares and most recently, in the Orient with Dong Kingman.

Jo is a member of the Pacific Grove Art Center, the Monterey Peninsula Watercolor Association, Artists' Equity and the Salinas Valley Art Gallery. Currently, she has works hanging at the Recovery Center of Community Hospital, the Carmel offices of New York Life and the Salinas Valley Art Gallery.

"Studies in Class" is a broad portrait of the artist's sensuality of line and form. As she says, "the human body is one of the greatest tools an artist can use to capture the elegant subtlety of form." Classy and classical, the show is an extension of the admiration and respect the artist feels for the talent of the models she has studied through the years.

Mike Duffy's multi-media exhibit suggests 'Trust the Universe'

"TRUST THE Universe," a multi-media exhibit of recent works by Mike Duffy, will open for a three-week showing at the Cherry Foundation on Saturday, Feb. 4.

The Monterey artist works in a wide range of styles and media that defy classification, from sphere-like constructions that suggest exploding planets to delicate line drawings and watercolors that evoke a mood of introspection by exploring pictorial space and light.

For the constructions, Duffy's starting point is the sphere, which he transforms into an updated version of iconographic art with his exacting use of materials.

The idea that each individual work is a self-sufficient micro-universe is amplified by the artist's concern for fine detail and his ability to infuse new life into recycled fragments of wood, scraps of metal, and discarded objects.

"The work is a play with the patterns of the universe; it is a search for clues to help us see the ultimate source of self both physical and spiritual," Duffy says.

After graduating from San Francisco State in 1964, Duffy worked in advertising before returning to school to resume graduate studies in art.

Since then, he has had eight one-man and group showings in San Francisco and on the Monterey Peninsula, including shows at the Third Eye Gallery in Santa Cruz, the Vision Gallery in Sacramento and Malvina's Gallery in San Francisco.

Currently, Duffy resides in Monterey and It's true it needs some work but if you like wood wainscoting, built-in cabinets, old rock fireplaces, hardwood floors, and high ceilings then this one's for you. This newly listed home has 4 bedrooms, 3 baths and an ocean view from most of the rooms. Located in Pacific Grove just one block from the beach, this home is being offered for $349,000.

It has two fireplaces, a modern kitchen, solid oak cabinets, custom molding and top quality carpet. $359,500.

THRIVING BAKERY

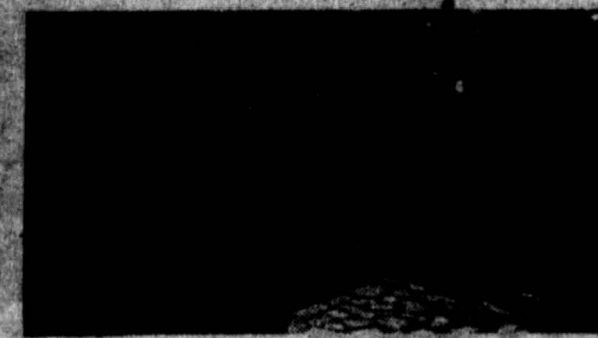

The owner wants to retire now and sell this thriving bakery and deli located near the aquarium on Cannery Row. The price includes all trade fixtures and equipment, which is in excellent condition.
